Showdown Over Veto Looms

New York, July 13 (AP)—Advocates of Australian-American proposals for an autonomous international atomic control agency pushed ahead doggedly today on a course which may lead to a decisive showdown with Russia over the big power veto in the United Nations.

These proponents conceded that Russia would block any move to amend the charter on the veto question, simply by invoking the veto itself. Nevertheless, they proceeded on their course, with the suggestion that the charter, and the set-up of the U.N. itself might prove to be outmoded in the atomic age.

These factors emerged after yesterday's acrimonious three-hour session of the 12-nation atomic working committee at which:

1. The retiring atomic chairman, Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, rejected the Russian atomic plan as "impossible."

2. Bernard M. Baruch, of the United States, said Evatt's summation as chairman "conforms basically to the United States proposals." Apparently referring to a Russian demand for immediate destruction of atom bombs, Baruch added that "a solemn expression of pious intent is not sufficient . . . protection."

3. Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko said he saw no reason why exchange of atomic secrets should not be started immediately among the United Nations. He opposed unsuccessfully the formation of 12-nation committees to carry on under the commission.

4. Evatt, according to a witness who asked not to be identified, accused Gromyko of obstructing progress on his report by "talking too much" and Gromyko retorted: "Not half as much as you."

In a preliminary to that point of debate Gromyko took offense when Evatt omitted mention of Russia among the nations which had been helpful in the work of the atomic sub-committee whose efforts were under discussion.

Soda Pop-Beer Battle Fatal

Terre Haute, Ind., July 13 (U.P.)—William Dowell, 30, was held today in the death of his brother, wounded fatally during a tree-to-tree gun battle which followed an argument over whether to take home a case of beer or a case of soda pop.

Walter Dowell, 27, died in a hospital from a wound in the abdomen. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide.

The men's sister, Audrey, 16, told authorities that William had come home alone Thursday night after leaving with his brother for a tavern at Shepardsville, near here. He seized a 12-gauge shotgun, she said, and announced, "I'm going to kill Walter."

William Was Waiting

When Walter returned home a few minutes later, William was waiting for him, she said. He fired three shots but missed. Walter then dodged into the house and got a 16-gauge shotgun and told his sister to turn out all the lights.

Audrey and an older sister, Mrs. Thelma Carpenter, 22, hid under a bed in the house while their brothers battled in the woods outside.

William returned to the house and said simply, "Get an ambulance, I shot him."

Prosecutor John Jett said the brothers, both miners, had gone to the tavern to pick up a case of soda pop ordered by their father before he left with their mother on a trip to Detroit.

Jett quoted William as saying that Walter had wanted to take home a case of beer, too, but that William had objected. They argued briefly, then left the tavern separately.

20 Filipino Women Nabbed

Tarluc, Luzon, P. I., July 13 (AP)—Twenty Filipino women were kidnaped today at the nearby village of Mayantog by an armed band which Philippine army military police identified as members of the peasant irregular guerrilla organization, the Hukabalahaps.

The military police said the kidnaping was apparently an aftermath of the clash between MPs and HUKs near the village July 9 when 38 HUKs and one MP were slain. Unable to provide a motive for the mass kidnaping, the MP officials speculated it might have resulted from an attempt to "recruit" camp cooks and workers.

Distraught provincial officials said they had good hopes the women would not be physically mistreated.

Meanwhile, at Lubao to the southward in Pampanga province, a bloody clash between the HUKs and a group of MPs reinforced with civilian guards went into its second day.

Reliable reports of yesterday's fighting said an entire detachment of 50 civilian guards had been slain. There was no estimate of casualties suffered by the Hukbalahaps.

MPs started using mortars today against the entrenched peasants who are equipped with .50-caliber machine guns.

Maor. Tiburcio Ballestros, Pampanga province provost marshal, reported the MPs and guards had the HUKs surrounded and that their surrender was but a matter of time.

'Drunken Bullies' Rebuked By Eichelberger in Japan

Tokyo, July 13 (AP)—The crackdown by Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger on the "drunken bullies" of the American occupation forces in Japan highlights a subject which has been a major disturbance to occupation officials—the behavior of American soldiers in Japan.

Indicative of the proportions of the disturbance is seen in the fact that the Eighth army commander saw fit to release his letter for publication after having made the subject a part of his Fourth of July address to assembled troops.

It was stressed that the conduct of the majority of the occupation personnel has been above reproach, but the objectionable minority have assaulted women, maliciously beaten Japanese men, stole, engaged in black market operations and by their "deliberate bullying attitude" have made the Japanese suspicious of the democracy which our troops are supposed to represent.

In the words of Eichelberger: "One drunken slovenly bully can neutralize the good impression made by a dozen fine soldiers."

Not only have the Japanese been distressed with the performance of the objectionable minority. American wives who have arrived recently have been sharply critical of troops who subject them to whistles and howls when the appear on the streets. The sight of American troops openly fraternizing with Japanese women likewise has been censured by the American women.

In this connection, it should be noted that not only enlisted men are seen in the company of Japanese women. Officers of high rank may be seen driving Japanese women in their cars.

General Staff Split on Age

Washington, July 13 (U.P.) — Reliable sources reported today that the war department's general staff is split over whether men 29 through 35 years of age should again be drafted.

The war department officially said "it may be necessary" to consider the induction of men through age 35. The White House yesterday stated that the army would recommend to President Truman that the top induction age be raised from 29 to 34 years.

The army said it would specify that future draft calls be filled by men within the 19 to 29 age bracket "insofar as possible."

"If in the future it is found that there are insufficient personnel within this age bracket to satisfy manpower requirements," the war department said, "it may be necessary to consider the induction of men through age 35."

Differences of opinion on army manpower suplies at the general staff level centers on the army's voluntary recruiting program.

Some top-ranking officers are said to believe that the recruiting program plus draft of the younger men will provide the army with sufficient men to meet its projected strength of 1,070,000 by July 1, 1947. Other officers think the total will be reached only if older men are drafted.

Spokesmen for the war department's personnel branch state that the army does not want men over 29 because of their physical condition and lack of enthusiasm for duty.

The district attorney has a list of articles found in the rooms occupied by the pair in a Corvallis hotel covering five closely typewritten pages.
