

New Quarters On September 1

Effective September 1 the Willamette National Farm Loan association, the agency that makes Federal Land bank and land bank commissioner loans in the counties of Polk, Marion and Yamhill and the Willamette Production Credit association, which makes crop, livestock and machinery loans, will occupy their new offices located at 299 North Commercial street at Chemeketa.

This was a joint announcement made today by J. J. Sechrist, secretary-treasurer of the farm loan association and P. M. Brandt, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the production credit association. Mr. Brandt and Mr. Sechrist have worked out plans whereby the two associations will share joint office space although the business affairs of each association will be conducted separately as in the past.

The new office location on the ground floor at Commercial and Chemeketa streets will be removed somewhat from the congested conditions which prevail at the present office location. Better parking facilities for out-of-town customers and the more ready accessibility from the street level were the deciding factors in making the move.

The production credit association was organized and began operating in this area in April, 1934. At this time the association has 605 members who use the credit facilities provided by their own organization in crop production and the purchase of livestock and equipment. This association services the 11 northwest counties in the state. The National Farm Loan association, affiliated with the Federal Land bank of Spokane, has been making real estate mortgage loans to its members in this area since August, 1917. This association has 690 active borrowers in the three counties which it services.

Monmouth Gets New Building

Contracts have been awarded by the Oregon state board of education, for construction of buildings at Oregon State college and at the Oregon College of Education in Monmouth. Associated Builders, Corvallis, have been signed to build a two-story addition to the Administration building at Monmouth. The structure, to be used for science research, was designed by Kenneth Legge, Portland architect.

Unions Claim 10,000 Here

The American Federation of Labor has 10,000 members in Salem and community, representing a buying power of 25,000 person, declares a full-page advertisement appearing in Thursday's Capital Journal. The advertisement is sponsored by the Association of Union Representatives which has offices in Labor temple, and is timed near the date of Labor day. Other advertisements are to follow.

The display lists all local business concerns and other employers who operate on an organized labor basis. Union labor leaders report that relations between the unions and the managements of all concerns where the workers are organized are amicable without exception. Salem at present is without strikes or any other serious controversy between employers and employees.

The Salem Central Trades and Labor council, the Association of Union Representatives, and all AFL units in Salem have headquarters in Labor temple, 445 Center street.
