County Commissioner Roy Rice stated Friday that the re-sealing program on county roads paved this year has been stopped due to the uncertainty of getting oil. To complete the re-sealing program on the 28 miles laid out would take six cars of oil, but two have arrived and the others cannot get here inside two weeks at the earliest, he said. This might be too late for the work so the rest of the roads will be resealed next summer. Those which were sealed over are the Auburn road, Browning avenue and market roads 90, 91 and 41 in the Pringle and Liberty area. The oiling crew will be turned over onto stripping highways, cleaning ditches and general maintenance work.

Seek Jobs for Disabled Vets

Preliminary to local observance of national employment week for disabled persons, scheduled for early October, Clifford A. Stocker, state rehabilitation officer for the blind, and Troy L. McGraw, assistant state veterans representative for Oregon, conferred with Carlton Greider and Robey Ratcliffe of the Salem employment service.

Stocker reported that at present 23 industrial firms in Portland are now employing 180 blind persons, including a number of veterans and that their work was proving entirely satisfactory. He said that currently there are 300 blind who are ready to go to work and are capable of handling jobs in a capable manner.

At the Salem office it was urged that all disabled folk who want to find jobs should call and talk matters over. Employers were also invited to take a hand by offering positions.

The employment office now has on file numerous positions for veterans who are not handicapped.

Specialists in Cancer Needed

By Paul F. Ellis
United Press Service Writer
New York, Sept. 21 (U.P.)—

The lack of trained specialists in the fight against cancer.

Research is going forward, but more cancer centers such as the Memorial hospital and Cancer Center here, are needed. In this center, cancer is detected, treated, studied in the laboratory, and young doctors trained to fight the disease.

Experts who have set the pattern here believe that if similar centers could be set up in other parts of the country and throughout the world, one of the biggest obstacles in the way of solving the mystery of cancer might be overcome.

This cancer center itself is pushed for room and an extensive program of expansion, including new buildings, is now underway—but improvement of this center alone will not solve the problem.

The need, cancer scientists agree, is for more and more integrated cancer centers.

The demand for treatment or examination at Memorial is terrific. The supposedly well-person going there for prevention examination must wait several months for his turn. He knows, however, that results are obtained in this hospital if the cancer is caught in time. No such long delays occur in those cases of known or suspected cases.

The same results could be obtained in all parts of the country if similar facilities were available, the medical men say. They believe that when more such centers are operating and there is a better distribution of trained specialists that cancer will be on the run; at least, its days may be numbered.

Bordeaux Mixture Time Has Arrived

With peach harvest concluded except for the occasional late varieties, growers should apply 8-4-100 Bordeaux mixture now to all peach trees which have been picked, but not sprayed with Bordeaux during the past few weeks. D. L. Rasmussen, assistant county agent, notes that many growers have already followed the recommended practice of applying Bordeaux as soon as each peach variety is picked.

Peach blight, if not controlled, may cause serious damage to peach trees. It may cause damage to the fruit, twigs and leaves during the growing season and blight the buds and cause cankers on the twigs during the fall and winter months. Applying Bordeaux now will afford protection against the bud and twig blight and canker stages by preventing spread of the spores by the fall rains.

Motor vehicle deaths increased 18 percent in the United States in 1945 over 1944.

Chemawans Turn Burglars

Four pupils at Chemawa Indian school, ages 8, 13, 13 and 14 respectively, have been identified as the lads who broke into the home of J. Olthoff at Pratum Wednesday night, ransacked the house pulling out drawers and spreading out jewelry, but finally leaving with $15 in cash as the only loot they desired. Deputy Sheriff James Garvin and George Henderson who made investigations at the house finally traced the job to the four lads.

The boys were picked up by Salem police on the same night after they had done the Pratum job, but were released and returned to the school, but at the time there was no reason to connect them with the Olthoff burglary.

In a statement made by the older lad he said he broke the glass in the kitchen door at the home and shoved his younger brother through into the house. The small boy then unlatched a window and the lads made their entry.

Of the $15 taken $10 has been returned. The boys went to a grocery store nearby and bought some baloney, ice cream and candy and broke a $5 bill. Another dollar went for basketball tickets which Chemawa authorities said would be returned.

High School Pupils Hazed

The customary hazing of sophomores at Salem senior high school that breaks out each fall shortly after the beginning of class work, has been plaguing school officials as well as peace officers during the week. Instances where sophomore boys have been "taken for a ride" by upper classmen have come to the attention of school authorities as well as to parents of the youths who have been victims of these extra curricular activities.

So far Principal Ed Carleton has been able to identify but two students now in school who assumed the role of hazers. The opinion has been expressed that downtown influences particularly on the part of graduates of Salem high, have been largely responsible for this week's outbreak.

The hazing runs the usual course. The hazers gang up on a sophomore, overpower him and haul him to a spot in the country where he is left to shift for himself. In one instance the boy's shoes were taken away and he was forced to walk home barefooted. In another case several sophomores were taken to a bridge where they were partly disrobed while the hazers took turns at wielding a fairly substantial paddle.

Plan Changes in Mill City Road

County Commissioner Ed Rogers, who was above Mill City Friday examining improvement of a county road which is being undertaken by Frank & Etzel Lumber company to open up some large patches of timber north and east of that town, will recommend to the county court a change in the right of way of the road about a mile north and west of Mill City where it is wished to switch the road into another direction for half a mile or so, construct a new piece of road and then hook onto the old road again. This is the piece of road running through the Allen ranch and if the change is approved the old part of the road will probably be abandoned.

The road north of the Allen ranch which has fallen into disuse is hardly passable on horseback for part of the way said the commissioner, but the lumber company plans to put this into shape for truck travel and in addition extend the road about due north until it reaches the Little North Fork in the vicinity of Elkhorn.

Red Cross Work In War Praised

Members of the Salem Retail Credit Bureau listened to a report of Red Cross work in the Pacific ocean area during World War II from Emmett C. Forsythe at a Friday noon meeting in the Nelson building.

Speaking as an individual and not as a representative of the Red Cross, Mr. Forsythe had only praise for Red Cross work with branches of the armed forces during World War II. "Work was mainly a channel for communications between the home front and the boys in the field," according to the speaker, who recently returned from Bepu, Japan. "However, the biggest tribute must go to a solid organization of the Red Cross at home," he added.

Francis Smith, recently returned from a credit bureau conference in Boise, Idaho, gave a report on the meeting there. Smith demonstrated a new wire recording machine that is coming into prominent usage along business lines.

Alfred Schindler

Candidates for Wallace's Post

Washington, Sept. 21 (U.P.)—President Truman is expected to act speedily in appointing a successor to Henry A. Wallace as secretary of commerce.

It will be a recess appointment since congress is not in session. When congress convenes in January, Mr. Truman will submit the formal nomination to the senate for confirmation.

Undersecretary of Commerce Alfred Schindler will head the commerce department as acting secretary until Mr. Truman announces Wallace's successor.

Schindler, who hails from St. Louis, Mo., and is an old acquaintance of Mr. Truman, was among those being widely mentioned today for elevation to the cabinet post. His Missouri connections, plus the fact that he was No. 2 man in the department when Wallace was fired, contributed largely to this speculation.

Schindler was on the west coast when Wallace resigned. He immediately cancelled plans for some speeches and headed back to Washington "to follow the wishes of the president."

Another Washington-bound figure—and another prospect for the cabinet job—was Robert S. Kerr, outgoing governor of Oklahoma and a frequent consultant in the high councils of the democratic party.

Home Extension Training Meeting

Officers of the Marion county home extension units met at the YMCA, Friday for an officers' training meeting. Mrs. Azalea Sager, state home demonstration leader, was present to speak to the officers. Mrs. Floyd Fox, chairman of the county committee, presided. Arrangements for the meeting were in charge of members of the county home extension committee and Miss Eleanor Trindle, Marion county home demonstration agent.

During the morning session Mrs. Sager's subject was "Leadership a Challenge." The morning program also included reports on state council by Mrs. Verna Scott of Sublimity, Mrs. Glenn Briedwell of Silverton, and Mrs. Esther Hartley of Jefferson. Special instruction was given to unit publicity chairmen by Miss Marguerite Gleason and Miss Maxine Buren.

"The Business Meeting" was the topic which Mrs. Sager discussed at the afternoon meeting. Handbooks of instructions were given to all the officers who were present. The yearbooks for all unit members were also distributed to unit chairmen.

Center Street Lights Flash Too Quickly

Complaints that the recently installed "wait and walk" traffic signals on Center street at the Commercial, Liberty and High intersection do not give a pedestrian sufficient time in which to cross appeared borne out by a check of the elapsed time. From the time the "walk" signal is flashed on until it changes to "wait" just ten seconds elapse and unless a person is a fast stepper and steps off the curb at the first possible moment without beating the light, the pedestrian is several steps short of the opposite side of the street by the time the signal changes. The "wait" signal is on approximately 30 seconds. For the most part motorists and pedestrians appear to be complying with the regulations and the movement of traffic, particularly across Center is considerably less hazardous.

Sheridan Sylvester Shoemaker and Mark Twain Shoemaker, both of Toledo, who have been held at the county jail on request of the parole board, were taken to the penitentiary Friday as parole violators.

The passing of two bad checks in Salem has been cleared, police reported Friday, by the apprehension of A. O. Morris. The checks here were passed on Salem stores, one for $20 and one for $10.

County Gets 3 Way Contract For Independence Bridge

The county court was in receipt Friday of copy of a tentative three way contract between the state, Marion and Polk counties for construction of a bridge over the Willamette river at Independence to replace the inter-county ferry there. The tentative form was prepared by J. M. Devers, attorney for the state highway commission, who said in an accompanying letter that he was not insisting on acceptance of the contract in the form prepared, but asked the court to examine it to the nature of the road the highway department will require approaching the bridge. The contract provides that the respective counties will construct and maintain such roads.

Under terms of the tentative agreement the state pledges itself to make necessary surveys, prepare plans and specifications, prepare and call for bids and to pay half the cost of construction, such half cost being estimated at $320,000.

Marion county would pledge itself to provide right-of-way for approaches and road to the bridge at its own expense; maintain its section of the bridge, approaches and road, perform such construction and improvement on the road to the bridge as to bring it to satisfactory standard, at its own expense, and to pay one-fourth of the cost of construction or $160,000 in two equal installments, one to be paid when the bridge is half completed and the other on completion and acceptance of the structure.

Polk county would pledge itself to provide right-of-way on its side, bring the road and approaches to standard and when the bridge is completed maintain its section and the approach and roadway. Polk county would pay one-fourth of the cost in 10 equal installments of $16,000 each, the first to be paid after the contract is awarded by the highway commission and a like installment each year thereafter. Provision is made that as to Polk county that the county will assign to the highway commission such sums as may be allotted to it by the legislature to assure the payments provided in the contract. It is understood the proposed form as prepared by Devers varies a little from the original agreement with Polk county which was to pay out in 12 instead of 10 installments.

The contract further says that the sums mentioned as to cost of the bridge are understood to be estimates only and if the cost varies the sums in the contract will vary in proportion.

Although the city council has repeatedly called the attention of the railroad company to the poor protection for traffic at the crossing it is without a bell or night signal. It is an open crossing and there is a street light at Baker and Madison. Other accidents have occurred there.

City council records show that in a city council meeting July 20, 1945, the need of a signal at Madison street was discussed in the council. It was stressed at another meeting of August 20, 1945, in the presence of Southern Pacific officials headed by a Mr. Hopkins. In a general discussion of track maintenance in Salem Alderman Tom Armstrong reminded the railroad men that a safety signal was "much needed at Madison and D streets."

All of the dead youths were members of well-known families. Two, Albin and Schofield, formerly were Capital Journal carriers, Albin for two years and Schofield for three years.

At the office of Coroner L. E. Barrick it was said no inquest had been ordered, pending developments, but that an investigation was being made.

Certificate of retirement from Davenport & Mather, Jewelers, Mill City, has been filed with the county clerk by R. L. Mather and Fred Davenport.

Cars driven by Gilbert Armstrong, 1440 North Church, and Earl R. Robbins, 495 North 18th, collided Friday night at Winter and Hood. There were no injuries.

Goiter trouble is caused by malfunctioning of the thyroid gland in the neck.

Two Traffic Victims Sent to Hospitals

Two persons were taken to hospitals in Salem Thursday night for examination following traffic accidents. Both were released after minor injuries were dressed.

E. F. Gleason, 949 North Winter, was riding a bicycle at Center and Liberty when he was involved in a collision with an automobile driven by L. M. Stewart, a woman.

Colleen Andresen, 1155 South 13th, was sitting in a parked car with Harold Tanner, 1260 Lewis street, when the car was struck by another driven by Carl Earl Ault of West Dayton, and Miss Andresen was taken to a hospital for examination. Ault was arrested by the police on a drunk charge. The accident happened in the 1100 block on South 13th, near the Andresen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. White, Cascade drive, West Salem, have received word that they are now grandparents, a son being born Thursday, Sept. 19, to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fowler, Glassboro, N. J. Mrs. Fowler was the former Miss Evelyn White. The boy weighed 7 1/2 pounds and has been named Stephen Jesse.
