

100 Vets Take Flight Courses

One hundred Salem veterans of World War II have taken to the air under the GI bill of rights and are now taking flight training at the Salem Air Service school at McNary field. Of the group 80 are taking the private flying course; five, the commercial course; eight, the instructor's course; five, the instrument course; and two the multi-engine course. Twelve planes are used at the school in training the men and seven pilots, having a total of over 17,000 hours of instruction time, are employed by the school. Five of the seven instructors, Glenn Favel, Chuck Pilette, Melvin Holt, Phil Boyer and Paul Harrison, were pilots with some branch of the armed forces during the war. The other two, John Hughes and Wally Tower, were test pilots with aircraft companies. The school began its veteran training program July 1, 1946, and last week enrolled its 100th student. October 28 it is planned to start a ground school at Willamette university that will be open to veterans and the general public. The 50 hour course will offer instruction in navigation, meteorology, civil air regulations, radio and aircraft. Guests in Woodburn Woodburn—Mrs. Ray Parker of Heishey, Nebr., is here visiting at the Glen Polly and Carl Slover homes. Mrs. Parker is an aunt of Mr. Polly and Mrs. Slover.
