Woodburn—Rev. V. L. Mofenbier, pastor of St. Luke's church, announces the following Christmas program for the parish. Christmas masses will begin with solemn high mass at 6 o'clock, with low masses at 8 o'clock, 8:15 and 10:30. An extra priest will assist with confessions on Saturday afternoon and evening, from 4:30 to 5:30 and 7:30 to 8:30, and again on Tuesday from 3:00 to 5:30 and 7:00 to 9:00.

Rev. Method Korn, O.S.B., and Rev. Joseph Hertz will assist the parish priests at the solemn high mass at 6 o'clock. The traditional candlelight procession to and blessing of the crib will precede the high mass. Christmas music will be presented at all the masses. At the 6 o'clock solemn high mass, the girls' choir, under the direction of Sr. M. Victoria, O.S.B., and Sr. M. Roberta, O.S.B., will sing carols. The men's choir will render the music for the high mass.

The crib, the pastor's Christmas gift to the parish, will again represent the Bethlehem scene of Christ's birth. All the people of the Woodburn community are invited to see the crib and bring their friends. The church building will be open throughout the day.

The committee is extending gratitude to all contributors and helpers in the campaign.

Slightly over one-half of the total number of envelopes have been returned, with a high percentage of donations received. In order that the money received from this year's seal sale may be put to use as soon as possible in the work for which it is intended, Mrs. Colgan urged all who have not as yet mailed in their donation to do so as soon as possible.

Miss Henrietta Woifer, principal of the training school, reported a fine response by training school pupils in the sale to students of Santa Claus buttons, returns from which also go into the T.B. seal sale fund.

Timber Supply Outlook Good

Dallas—A perpetual supply of lumber for milling operations in Dallas may be possible with development of a government sustained yield program in this area, according to George T. Gerlinger, president of the Willamette Valley Lumber Company, who spoke before the Dallas Chamber of Commerce at the weekly meeting.

Gerlinger indicated that there is about a 20 years' supply of timber available for the local mill if the government program is not secured but that the sustained yield program is of such vital importance to the community that it should be the aim of every citizen to see that it is brought about.

Milling operations, however under the program would be curtailed from present magnitude and will result in probably a 35 per cent reduction in the lumber output. The labor demand will probably remain at present levels as operators will tend to more specialized production, working up materials that now go elsewhere for processing. New by-products processes add to the manufacturing picture.

Mr. Gerlinger told briefly of his connection with the Dallas industry which began in 1903 when the daily train from Portland was the only method of travel. At that time it was a difficult trip by horse and buggy from the hotel in downtown Dallas to the present mill site in midwinter.

Picture of the future was expressed in optimistic terms by the mill company president. Cooperation of the workmen who produce the logs and lumber will be needed, he said. The Willamette Valley Lumber Company has retained its cutover lands, most of which are coming forward with new growth to be available in the future and tree planting has been undertaken where proper reforestation requires that help be given to nature's way of reforestation.

Much less waste of timber stumps is the result of present high prices. Over-ripe trees which a few years ago would be passed by are now being cut for the good lumber that they do contain. The government's selective logging program encourages this timber-saving process.

Great changes in sawmills will result from the using up of the old growth forests and the coming on of second growth timber, Gerlinger declared. The rapidly with which new growth may be harvested depends to a large extent on climatic conditions with the coast zone producing more timber than the drier districts further inland.

At the underpass between Jefferson and Albany, a California car traveling south at the rate of 70 miles per hour failed to make the curve at the underpass and a head-on collision resulted. Hart drove his new Dodge truck off the highway when they saw the car approaching but it was impossible to avoid being hit. The state police had been following the speeding car but on account of the heavy traffic were unable to catch up. The man in the California car was taken to Albany hospital and his car almost demolished. The Harts suffered bruises and the truck was damaged.
