Campus Clippings

By Jean Swift

Saturday was a hey-day for students here in Eugene. It was the day that hundreds of fathers invaded the campus to be with their student offspring, to see a swim meet, a play, two basketball games, and to attend meetings of the Oregon Dads. Many of the mothers came along, too, probably to check up on just what the son or daughter was up to.

At the luncheon, Mrs. John Carkin, president of the U of O Mothers' club, gave a welcoming talk to the fathers, and Tom Kay extended greetings from the student body to the Dads. Preceding the luncheon, Rev. George H. Swift delivered the invocation. Some of the Dads participating in the festivities were John Carson, Brazier Small, Phillip Schnell, Ralph Cooley, John Carkin, Oliver Huston, George Nelson, Walter Kirk, Mervin Fidler and W. M. Tate. Also saw Aiden Sundlie, Woody Carson and Bill Mott with their fathers.

"Fashion Plates" Janet Kirk of Tri-Delta and Marty Lou Coffey of Sigma Kappa both were entered by their respective houses as candidates for "Miss Vogue" in the Theta Sigma style show . . . Wednesday evening, Randolph Churchill, son of Great Britain's wartime prime minister, spoke to an enthusiastic student assembly about the background, ideals and present interests of his native country.

Aiden Sundlie and George Moorhead are continuing to take top honors in competitive swimming meets. Both participated in events judged as blue-ribbon performances last week, when the Oregon paddlers defeated
