

War Brides From Foreign Lands Aided in Joining Their Husbands

War brides from foreign lands seeking to join their veteran husbands in Marion county are big boosters for the services of the home service department of the Marion county chapter of the Red Cross as they have found intelligent and sympathetic assistance in unravelling the red tape of entry into this country.

This is but one of the many varied services the busy home service department of the Marion county chapter of the Red Cross renders to the serviceman, the veteran, and the dependents of each, according to Miss Kathryn McKinnon who heads the home service department. Miss McKinnon is assisted in this big job by Mrs. Ellnor Fox, and by 36 volunteer workers who are intermittently called on for rendering reports on cases from every community in the county.

The some service department is dedicated to service to the men and women who are serving or who have served in the armed forces and their dependents. In the Marion county chapter approximately half of the local budget is allocated for meeting their varied needs.

Whatever the problem of the service man or women, the Red Cross home service stands ready to assist, whether it be financial need or information, personal needs. The department works closely with the war department and the veterans' administration.

Overseas services during the war, particularly in regard to messages from and to families of service personnel, prisoner of war service and other allied jobs are familiar to everyone but the home service which is traditional with the American Red Cross is a department which receives but little attention from the public while an immense service is being rendered.

Frequently tangled domestic situations need clarifying for the serviceman and veteran, and here the home service worker is of great aid with inquiries and messages frequently handled for veteran applicants. Hundreds seek information, furlough and furlough extensions in case of need are cleared through home service. Frequently service men want accurate reports on the health of their families, they turn to the Red Cross worker for quick and true reports. Consultation and

Grade A Label for Jersey Milk Urged

Better merchandising of Jersey milk in Oregon was urged on members of the Marion County Jersey Cattle club Wednesday evening when they gathered to hear I. W. Slater, Jersey fieldman for the 11 western states, discuss the present situation. The meeting at the dairy cooperative building was called by Floyd Bates, club president. Slater indicated that, so far, Jersey breeders in the main have been concerned with production but indicated that the market and should not be neglected and he suggested a grade A label for Jersey milk.

Oregon eclipses all states for Jerseys, he said, approximately 80 per cent of the dairy cattle in this state being of that breed. Over the nation the number of sires has fallen off, according to national registration records. He pointed out that in 1928 out of 75,000 Jerseys registered 19,000 were sires, while in 1946 out of 64,000 but 9000 were sires. The fieldman urged a Jersey consignment sale for Oregon and discussed the insemination program by the United States department of agriculture, expressing the opinion that possibly there had not been a sufficiently careful selection of sires and that it may take several years to get the program operating without mistakes being made.
