There wasn't much for state police to do Friday night when they were dispatched to a traffic accident on Highway 99E near Friendly Farm, where, the radio report said, there was a young woman with a broken arm. They found the accident, and the girl with the broken arm, Marie Hirsch of Helena, Mont., but the arm had been broken several weeks ago, and no one was hurt in the Friday night accident. It was a collision of cars driven by William Dornbush, route 7, and Capitola Purdy, route 8.

Evacuating Labor Camp

Incidental to the farm labor camp on the former army airport property passing from government ownership to Salem Agricultural Housing, Inc., to which it will be transferred through the county court, the department of agriculture has been ordered to stop registration of tenants, starting Thursday of this week. Cancellation of the department's permit to use the property will be effective October 9.

The date by which tenants have been notified to quit the property is September 25. If any remain after that date they will receive eviction notices from the government September 27, according to Jay Schreckengust, camp manager, and eviction proceedings will start September 30.

The manager said the camp has to date been only about 25 percent evacuated. About 70 families, or about 300 persons, are still living in the buildings.

Europe Plans Customs Union

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—Thirteen nations in the Paris economic conference are going to look into the idea of setting up a customs union as a self-help move under the Marshall plan for United States aid to Europe.

These nations—including Britain, France and Italy—will invite the Soviet union, two Soviet republics and 12 other nations, most of them in eastern Europe to join in the project.

The British and Belgian foreign offices made simultaneous announcements of the plan last night in the name of all the nations that have agreed to take part. These nations include all those at the Paris conference except Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

The announcement said the participating countries had "decided to create a study group for the purpose of examining the problems involved and the steps to be taken in the formation of a customs union or custom unions between any and all of these governments and any other governments invited to participate."

The objective of a customs union is free trade—unhindered by tariff barriers—among member nations and a common tariff policy toward non-member nations.

The announcement said any customs union would be formed "in accordance with the principles of the draft charter for the proposed international trade organization" and with the idea of "promoting a stable and healthy economy in Europe within the framework of expanding world trade."

Keizer School Bus Schedule

Three school buses will start a tentative schedule in the Keizer district Monday, announces Ralph Nelson, principal. Changes may be made later if needed, he states. All children will be informed of the schedule of their particular route when school opens Monday morning. Principal Nelson reports 357 registered to date with late arrivals expected to increase the number. The first four grades meet in the old building and the fifth to eighth grades in the new building.

Extra Session Not Probable

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Influential senators threw cold water today on suggestions for a special session of congress to deal with emergency aid for Europe.

Senator Millikin (R-Colo.), told a reporter that members "will not look kindly upon a call of a special session upon a hullabaloo basis."

Millikin is chairman of the republican conference, which includes all republican senators. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), president pro tempore of the senate and chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the senate republican policy group, previously had frowned on calling the legislators back before next January.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, democratic party whip, said he knew of no plans for a special session and that if one were called congress probably would spend most of the time "talking about politics and the 1948 election."

"But the decision is one for President Truman," Lucas added.

Aboard the battleship Missouri, which is bringing President Truman back from the inter-American defense conference in Rio de Janeiro, White House aides indicated the chief executive has yet to be convinced that a special session is needed.

Rural Teachers Hold Conference

Rural school teachers from one room schools over the county gathered at the courthouse Saturday for a "county workshop" under direction of County Superintendent Agnes Booth in preparation for the school year just ahead.

Mrs. Bernice Yearly of the county health department outlined the health program for the year as it affects the schools. Miss Lenora Headley of the same department advised the teachers of the health services that will be available in connection with their teaching work, and other matters discussed were new text books, new school laws, supervisory program, explanation of the new rural school district board and the zoning program, 4-H health work and similar topics.

Draft Plans for Hi Y Conference. Plans in connection with the formation of a youth and government conference to be held in Salem next spring and attended by Hi-Y representatives from four districts of Oregon were discussed this week at the YMCA by a group of prominent educators and business men.

U. G. Dubach, former dean of men at Oregon State college, was named general chairman of the planning committee which included Tinkham Gilbert, Frank B. Bennett and Douglas McKay of Salem and several from Portland. The latter included Dwight Welch, YMCA area secretary of Portland.

The plan calls for districting the state into four sections, where youth and government groups will be organized. They will be provided with legislative matters which the state law makers are expected to take up and discussions will be held. Eventually they will be brought to Salem for an over-all conference.

Juvenile Delinquency on Upswing Says FBI Chief

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover today expressed fear that juvenile delinquency, which dropped off after the war, may again be on the upswing. Although a study for the first six months of this year showed that fewer boys and girls were arrested than in a similar 1946 period, an upward trend was noted during April, May and June.

"If this trend continues throughout the year," Hoover said, "1947 will show a noticeable increase in the arrest of juvenile offenders."

Hoover said the same study, based on 371,228 fingerprint records, revealed that the number of arrests—both juveniles and adults—during the first half of the year was 20 percent higher than in the corresponding 1946 period. He said arrests of males was up 20.5 percent, and of females 15.7 percent.

Those in their early 20s got into trouble most frequently, according to the survey.

Hoover said more than 41 percent of the records examined, or 155,206, represented major law violations. And 202,678 of the 371,228 arrested had previous police records.

The Hoover study was based only on records forwarded to the FBI by state and local police. In many cases, police do not send records to the federal bureau.

Compared with the pre-war year 1941, Hoover said, the arrests of both boys and girls under 21 increased 17 percent, while the arrests of youths under 18 were up 5.9 percent.

Speaking of boys under 21 years of age, Hoover said that arrests involving offenses against the person—homicide, assault and rape—were up 28.9 percent. In the same age group, there was an increase of 28.8 percent in arrests for offenses against common decency, including indecent exposure, drunkenness, disorderly conduct, narcotics, and vagrancy.
