Lowest Jobless Aid Since War
The lowest jobless payments since the war were reported by the state unemployment compensation commission today. Although a continued influx of newcomers has boosted Oregon's labor force to a record peak of more than 650,000, payrolls soared even higher. Fewer than 2 per cent of Oregon's workers drew unemployment compensation checks during September. The total payments were $333,848—20.6 per cent below September of 1947.

Schmidt Fined for Drunken Assault
Dale W. Schmidt, a transient, cut out a big task for himself Friday night, but he was doomed from the start. Schmidt boastfully announced he was going to "beat up" everybody in Salem. (He didn't use those exact words, but the idea was unmistakable.) He might have gotten a better start if his first attempt had not been made on Patrolman O. O. White. Schmidt was subdued, handcuffed and jailed on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $65 in police court.

Citizenship Class—The YMCA class in citizenship will be held at 8 o'clock Saturday night with C. A. Kells in charge of instruction. Kells will be available at 7 o'clock to assist would-be citizens who have had difficulty in filling out their papers.

E. J. Church, who has been appointed to head March of Dimes drive in Salem.

Polio Menace Rouses Fight

With an alarming upswing in new polio cases this country now faces its most serious crisis in the relentless fight against infantile paralysis, E. J. Church, Marion county campaign director for "March of Dimes" in Salem, declared today.

First hand reports from a regional meeting of March of Dimes campaign directors held in Portland, which Mr. Church attended because of the emergency of the situation included: Polio cases for 1948 are already over the 20,000 mark and with the rise continuing in many states there is fear that the year's total may exceed 28,000 or even reach 30,000. The worst epidemic year in history was 1916 when 27,363 cases were charted.

Due to the terrific outbreaks which swept California, Texas and North Carolina, the emergency epidemic aid funds of the Foundation are now at the vanishing point. The fund may face a $2,000,000 deficit by January, the chairmen were told. This money borrowed from research funds will have to be replaced.

For this reason plans to hold the greatest March of Dimes drive in all the years of the polio fight were discussed at the Portland meeting. Recruiting of more volunteer workers in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana will begin at once, Mr. Church said.

Slight Easing

President Truman announced today he has directed the defense department to "organize all military reserve units required for the national security."

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters the order was not an outgrowth of any new deterioration of international relations. "It seems that the navy and marines got ahead of the army and air forces in organizing their reserves," he said. "This is intended to obtain a better balance."

Presidential aides at the White House in Washington told a reporter that Mr. Truman had no particular numerical goal in mind for strengthening the reserves.

The presidential orders, requiring action "without delay," called for establishment of "vigorous and progressive reserve training programs."

It was directed to Defense Secretary Forrestal and the heads of the armed service departments under him. The president told Forrestal to assign "an active, capable, high-ranking officer" to head the reserve program in each department of the national defense establishments.

Mr. Truman signed an executive order aboard his Washington-bound campaign train shortly before midnight, to carry out the program. It says the national security requires that "reserve components of appropriate strength and maximum effectiveness exist throughout the nation."

In a statement, Mr. Truman said the organized reserve corps of the army and air force has not made as rapid progress as other branches of the service in building up their post-war strength.

Forrestal was directed to report within 60 days on progress under the order. Needed to Balance Defense The president said his order was intended to "give the balance necessary to our national defense in its broadest aspect."

Mr. Truman paid "particular tribute to the progress which has been made by the navy department and the members of the naval and marine corps reserve in building up their post-war reserve organization and in forwarding their training programs."

In much the same way, he said, the national guard has "largely perfected" its post-war organization. He spoke of its success in recruiting. Progress of the army and air force reserve corps has not been as rapid, he said, "for many reasons." He assured them that the "full force of the government will be exerted toward creating appropriate and effective reserve establishments as rapidly as possible."

High praise was given Gov. Dewey whom Warren said he had known for 15 years. "I can say that he not only is a man of great ability but one who possesses strong character and is absolutely fearless. Gov. Dewey does not claim to have all the answers but he is a leader who can attract men of ability around him and I know he will do a job for you that will be satisfactory."

Warren declared that the republican party is 100 per cent behind Dewey. "Every republican leader is on the team," he said. Democrats Divided The present administration has no such unity. They are faced on one hand with the Wallace forces and its strange alliance with the communists and on the other hand, the Dixiecrats, who have bolted the party over an issue that most of us thought was settled when our constitution was adopted."

Before Warren was presented to the crowd, James A. Rodman, state chairman, introduced Douglas McKay, republican nominee for governor, Secretary of State Earl Newby, who is a candidate to retain his office, and Howard Bolton, GOP nominee for state treasurer.

With him as he traveled through Oregon on his way to Sacramento were all six Warren children, Virginia, 20, who with Mrs. Warren made the entire campaign trip; Nina, 15, Dorothy, 17, Bobby, 15, James, 29, and Earl, Jr., 18.

Warren will rest over the week-end before taking off by plane Monday for Miami and the American Legion convention.

Uniform Changes
Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—The navy has junked two wartime uniform regulations. The gray clothing introduced by Adm. Ernest King will be tossed aside after a year, during which officers can wear their present supplies out only while on sea duty, and reserves can put them on for short training duties and drills.

The gold stripes indicating rank must go all the way around the sleeve—not halfway, as they did during the war.

Cyclist Killed Hitting Bus

William Lyter, 46, of Salem, died at the Salem Memorial hospital early today about two hours after his motorcycle crashed into the side of a city bus at Madison and North Capitol streets shortly after midnight.

Mrs. Lucille Lukens, 30, is hospitalized in a serious condition. She was riding on the motorcycle behind Lukens. Both had an address of 495 Ford street.

Though jarred by the impact, none of the passengers on the bus, driven by Clair Epley, 118 Evergreen avenue, nor the driver were injured.

A ruptured fuel tank on the motorcycle caused gasoline to flow into the street where it became ignited. City firemen extinguished the blaze but before the motorcycle was badly burned.

Lyter received a broken pelvis, internal injuries and severe shock. Mrs. Lukens has a fractured pelvis and broken right ankle.

Witnesses told city police that Lyter swerved in an attempt to avoid striking the bus but struck it on the right side behind the left wheel. Both motorcycles were thrown to the pavement.

According to city police Lyter was driving north on Capitol street and the bus was going east across Capitol on Madison street.

Nut Growers
"We also have been faced with another serious situation," said Gallagher. "Due to the excess moisture in the nuts where we would normally require 30 hours to dry them it takes 50 to 60 hours, or a 100 per cent slowdown of the plant. So instead of running 100 tons a day through the plant as we normally do we can only handle 50 tons. The fact that we were faced with this difficulty and had to send word out to growers to hold back on deliveries a day or two may have given rise to a report getting out that nuts in the Salem area had been condemned. This is not true. We hope they will get progressively better."

"Old nut men say that with seasonal conditions like we have now the crop would normally mature from October 25 to November 1. But in the face of this we already have received at the plant about half as many nuts as we received all told last year. It looks as if our expected 1000 ton pack will be cut down greatly; how much there's no way of telling. If there's something else wrong than our theory of an immature dropping of the nuts, that may mean something else again. But if the theory is correct the nuts should get in better shape as the season goes along and we should salvage a pretty good supply yet."

Fade Out in Drier
"The nuts as they come from the trees have never looked better than those so far delivered but they just fade out in the drier."

John Trunk, general manager of the Northwest Nut Growers at Dundee, has sent out the following advice to growers, showing that the condition is statewide, rather than isolated in the Salem area:

1. Go into the walnut orchard and pick from a large number of trees scattered throughout the orchard at least 100 pounds of walnuts. Be sure these are thoroughly representative of the production throughout the plantings.

2. Take these walnuts to a drier where careful records of the green weight should be made. The nuts should then be washed and thoroughly dried.

3. Remove the nuts from the drier, weigh them and check the percentage of moisture loss or shrinkage.

4. Shell the entire lot and weigh the resulting meats to determine the percentage of yield.

Tracy Staats, candidate for second term as treasurer of Polk county — Staats was born and raised in Polk county, and has lived there all his life. His home is in Dallas. For 12 years Staats was deputy in the tax department of the sheriff's office. In 1944 he had both the democratic and republican nominations for treasurer.

Neutral Nations
Vishinsky broke his silence at the meeting only to accuse the would-be mediators of trying to trap Russia into taking part in the debate. "It is naive to believe the Soviet Union will swallow this bait," he said.

In a strangely worded reply, Bragmulla said "I therefore most firmly and categorically deny that in any of our minds was there any question of double dealing."

Herring Held for Diamond Ring Theft
Robert B. Herring, 18, Silverton, was nabbed by Salem police on a grand larceny charge Saturday when he attempted to pawn a diamond engagement ring stolen in his home town.

Herring stole an engagement and wedding ring set in Silverton, police said, and was taken into custody here after pawning the diamond ring. The ring he pawned was valued at $117.

Washed and thoroughly dried. 3. Remove the nuts from the drier, weigh them and check the percentage of moisture loss or shrinkage.

4. Shell the entire lot and weigh the resulting meats to determine the percentage of yield.

5. Grade the walnut meats into commercial classes such as light halves and pieces, light amber halves and pieces, standard amber halves and pieces, mold, shrunken kernels suitable for slicing or grinding and shrivel unfit for anything but stock feed."

Co-op Promises Aid
"These results should enable the grower to determine whether his crop is of sufficiently good quality to warrant his proceeding with the harvesting of it."

Trunk further stated that Northwest Nut Growers will provide all possible assistance in making the cracking tests for their grower members, but he could not guarantee that the association facilities will be adequate to keep up with the work. The nuts must be thoroughly dried before being brought to the Northwest Nut Growers' shelling plant at Dundee, as the association has no washing or drying facilities.

After the nuts are shelled and the meats classified, association personnel will attempt to help grower members decide if the walnuts have sufficient value for shelling or for processing in shell.

Mehama Truck Driver Killed

Thomas Willard Key, Stayton Rt. 1, Box 80-A (Mehama) was instantly killed about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon in a logging truck collision on the North Fork road a mile and half above Mehama.

Orval Dale Tull, Jr., 857 N. 18th street, Salem, is hospitalized here for severe cuts and bruises from the same accident. Olen James Mouser, Stayton Rt. 1, was treated in Stayton for a cut eye and sent home. All three men were engaged in logging operations.

State police report that Tull was apparently blinded by the sun and crashed into a logging truck driven by Edward V. Duman, Scio, Rt. 1, Box 54, which had stalled. The trucks were owned by Herman Free, Lyons, and Richard Schothoefler, Stayton.

Key's body was taken to the Weddle funeral home in Stayton. He is survived by his widow, Ella Key, and a young child.

Turkey Pickers to Report—The Northwest Poultry & Dairy Products company said its pickers were to report for work Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The plant has been in operation several days following settlement of the recent strike.
