Kaiser Heads Detroit Dam Builders Inspecting Project

One of the nation's big business men and great builders, Edgar Kaiser, head of Kaiser-Frazer Corp., arrived in Salem Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The amiable young executive, who is never too taken up with business to stop for a friendly word, came to Salem with other executives of his company in his own plane, an A-28, flying from Oakland, Calif.

A visitor to this area before, with those visits made quietly and without publicity Kaiser is here this time primarily to inspect the Detroit dam site and get a general picture of the plant layout for the dam.

He, however, talked of business conditions and before going to his hotel visited the Kaiser-Frazer dealer, here Emerson Teague. (The two spent two days together not too long ago when Teague was picked as one of the 23 Kaiser-Frazer dealers in the nation to visit the Willow Run factory).

The head man for the Kaiser projects delayed making statements about work at the Detroit dam until after he has made his visit to the site.

Business in general is picking up, Kaiser believes, but he also thinks that the people as a whole are uncertain as to what the economy is going to be in the future. His personal opinion, however, is that it is going to be all right. There has been a decline he opined, noting that basic metals had eased off, but indications are that things will begin moving a bit faster.

Commenting that the used car market had been off, Kaiser stated that there were signs that it was beginning to pick-up. This trend is noted in Los Angeles, according to the Kaiser executive, and in the past the business trends there had indicated the trend that will be followed in the nation.

New cars—they are not as much in demand as a year ago, according to Kaiser, but he also pointed out that production had somewhat ago begun to balance the demands for new cars.

Are the strikes in the east affecting the production of his cars? Kaiser answered that by saying that the Bendix Aviation Corp. strike had caused a shut-down of the Kaiser-Frazer plant. But next Tuesday the plant is slated to begin work again regardless of the outcome of the Bendix strike as another brake source has been found.

The time needed to thoroughly inspect the Detroit dam site will govern the length of Kaiser's visit here, but at the longest

New Mortuary Will Be Built

Establishment of a new mortuary business in Salem was revealed Friday with the registration of an assumed business name at the office of the county clerk.

Members of the firm will be Mr. and Mrs. Virgil T. Golden and Mrs. Belle Niles Brown. The location will be the southwest corner of South Commercial and Oak streets where a change in zone classification was recently made by the city council on application of W. T. Miltenberger from whom the Golden and Mrs. Brown acquired the property.

A new building will be erected on the property. It will have a frontage of 100 feet on South Commercial street and extend back 200 feet along Oak. The firm name will be the Virgil T. Golden company.

Golden and Mrs. Brown had long been partners in the Clough-Barrick mortuary in Salem. The new firm will be the fourth undertaking business operating here.

Bids will be opened Monday, Golden said, and construction will be this summer. The building will be about a story and a half high and of concrete or pumice stone.

Welfare Aid to Cost $1,393,550

Grand total of welfare assistance in Marion county for the next fiscal year starting July 1 will be $1,393,550 as estimated by the state public welfare commission in a statement of confirmation received by the county court Saturday from the state commission.

Broken down between the three contributors to the fund it is shown the federal government's share will be $563,622, the state's share, $580,950, and Marion county's share, $248,978.

Divided into case loads it is expected the fund will serve 400 cases under general assistance, 1600 under old age assistance, 175 in giving aid to dependent children and 32 in giving aid to the blind.

Marion county's share as to these various case loads is broken down to include $63,000 for general assistance, $134,811 for old age assistance, $47,733 for dependent children and $3,034 for aid to the blind.

Four Injured in Rear-End Collision

Minor injuries were received by four people in a rear-end collision of two automobiles on the Pacific highway just north of the city limits Friday night shortly before 11 o'clock.

Manley Francis Bennett, Brooks, told police he was driving south when the car driven by Donald S. Siddon, Portland, struck him from the rear, forcing his machine into the ditch where it overturned.

First aid was called and Bennett treated at the hospital and then released while his wife, Hattie Bennett, Siddon and James Staub, also of Portland and a passenger in the Siddon car, were given first aid at the scene of the accident.

School Board Keeping 'Mum'

Albany, Apr. 30—Members of the Albany school board had nothing to say Friday regarding the challenge of their action in awarding the local grade school building contract to the Ken Ward Construction company of Portland, nor to the reported threat of an injunction suit restraining them from signing the contract. Accordingly the board's action on the Ward contract remained final Friday.

The board's action was questioned Thursday night as the directors were assembled to take final action on the school budget in the junior high school building.

Issuing the challenge was Courtney Johns, spokesman for a delegation of 40 local residents including many business men, who contended that the contract should have been awarded to Edwards brothers, local contractors, whose bid of $571,986.12 was $334.12 higher than the Ward bid of $571,625.

Substance of the delegation's contention was that the board erred in not accepting the Edwards bid because it was, in final analysis, the "best" bid from the standpoint of the school district that that the school board failed to exercise its option to choose the contractor on that basis.

No injunction had been filed late Friday but participants in Thursday's meeting indicated Friday that such action is being strongly considered.

Strike of 60,000

Smashes Stop Sign And Fire Hydrant

The talents of an alert newspaper boy and the efforts of Salem police and detectives were combined Saturday morning to trace a driver who smashed over a stop sign and fire hydrant at the corner of Donna avenue and Portland road.

Advised of the accident, police learned from one Hollywood area resident that a newspaper delivery boy had witnessed the smash-up. The patrolman on the beat in that area found the youth and secured information for detectives on the car which was involved in the crash.

Two hours after the smash John A. Kainz, 737 Center, was under arrest for destruction of city property. He was fined $25 in police court. He said he left the accident scene under the impression that he had 24 hours to report the case under state law.

Shmoos Seen In Scout Circus

Shmoos will make their first Salem appearance at the Boy Scout circus next Saturday night at Sweetland field.

They will be a part of the animal fair sponsored by the Cub Scouts in a three ring circus, which, in fact is a ring within a circus.

The Salem Lions club committee, heading up the program, said today more than 800 cubs will take part in this 30-minute portion of the evening's activities. The shmoos will have the company of almost every kind of animal under the sun—lions, elephants, penguins, giraffes, tigers and such.

There will be clowns, ringmasters and Indians, too. A special train will bring the circus animals onto the field with a long line of cages, which will be unloaded in front of the three rings. Special skunks are also being imported.

There will be so many animals that they can't all take part in the fair. So they will have their own grandstands at each end of the three rings in front of the main grandstand.

Oscar Ludahl is chairman of the cub participation in the scout circus in which nearly 3000 scouts from Linn, Marion and Polk counties of the Cascade Area Council will take part. A Carl Aschenbrenner is general chairman for the circus, sponsored by the Salem Lions club.

No Agreement

Also, one western source said the west found no "jokers" in the deal suggested by Russia. The situation now is roughly this:

1. Tass, Soviet news agency, reported that Malik had informed Jessup Russia would raise the blockade of Berlin if France, Britain and the United States would life their counter-blockade, and if they would agree on a date for a meeting of the four-power council of foreign ministers.

2. Malik later officially confirmed that Tass report, and western sources said no other conditions have been raised by the Soviet.
