

Cafe Crackers Get Five Years

Dallas, May 4—Four men who pleaded guilty to separate charges of burglary not in a dwelling involving the theft of a safe from the Y cafe between Salem and Dallas on the night of April 13 were sentenced to the maximum of five years each in the state penitentiary Tuesday afternoon by Judge Arlie G. Walker in Polk county circuit court.

The four, who were returned to Dallas from Sacramento, Calif., by Deputy Sheriff Tony Neufeldt and Sgt. A. F. Mayfield of state police last Tuesday, are Jasper Boyington, 19, Otis Langley, 21, Charles Keith Gepner, 21, and Douglas Samuel Boyington, 22.

Without representation by legal counsel, which they waived when asked if they wished attorneys by Judge Walker, each of the men also waived right for time to consider a plea. They entered the guilty pleas and were sentenced immediately on Tuesday afternoon.

Sheriff T. B. Hooker and Deputy Neufeldt took them to the penitentiary the same afternoon.

The safe taken from the cafe contained an estimated $650 and other loot, including a portable typewriter and an adding machine, brought total estimated loss to $1000, according to Mr. and Mrs. Ervin York, cafe owners.

When arrested by FBI agents in Sacramento, the men had a total of $23 in small change. The portable typewriter was in their possession.

Officers have continued questioning of the men as suspects in similar-type burglaries in the area recently but no light has been shed on the other jobs.
