

Salem Officers Are Featured

Salem law officers are given the big play in the current edition of the Police Journal, official publication of the Lower Columbia River Peace Officers' association in a special Salem edition copies of which are just being received here.

The front cover carries a picture of Salem's city manager, J. L. Franzen, shaking hands in a grip of welcome to Clyde Warren, Salem's new police chief. Inside the front cover is a picture of the entire force. Tribute is paid to retiring Chief Frank Minto in a special article and an article is also devoted to some of the plans for the new chief.

A section is devoted to Sheriff Denver Young and his staff with an article on problems confronting his office with particular reference to the Detroit dam area. Pictures also are shown of his criminal staff.

Some pages also are devoted to the Oregon state police headquarters in Salem under command of Capt. R. G. Howard with a picture of Howard and Lt. Farley Mogan with an article also covering Howard's life as well as Mogan's. Civil service in Salem is discussed as well as other phases related to law enforcement here.

Albany Construction Passes Half Million

Albany—Estimated value of construction started here this year was boosted well past the half million dollar mark by permits for $61,816 in building during April, it was revealed at the office of City Engineer Harold Poling.

Residences predominated construction, totaling $54,766, and in addition permits for residential additions, alterations and repairs costing $5,475 were issued. Non-residential construction totaled only $1,575.

The April total was somewhat short of the $353,363 reported for March, but an even greater total for May is assured with inclusion of permits for the two prospective new grade school buildings which are inside the city limits.

Macleay—One hundred years ago Elder John Stipp donated the land for the Stipp-Macleay cemetery located about two blocks from the Macleay Grange hall. Here are buried many of the early settlers and their families.

Until about seven years ago the only work done here was donation. With only this work the cemetery was becoming a very unsightly place so a group of descendants of old settlers organized an association for the upkeep of the cemetery as no charge can be made for lots.

By donations from 50 cents to $100 and rummage sales a fund has been raised, the interest on which partially keeps down the grass and brush.

Again this year the women of the association are planning a rummage sale to purchase equipment.

This is one of the oldest cemeteries in Marion county. Theo Olson is president and Mrs. Robert Craig, secretary-treasurer of the association.
