

Council Acts Monday on Baldock Plan, Time Change

The people of Salem and community had really warmed up today over two issues that go before the city council Monday night, both of which the council is expected to take final action on.

Carson Talks On Legislature

Annual sessions, greater compensation and less partisanship were suggestions of Senator Allan Carson Friday noon as he spoke during the weekly session of the Salem Board of Realtors concerning the state legislature. The senator devoted considerable time to a discussion of S.B. 96 which was sponsored by the department of real estate and which failed of passage.

A clause which would have made members of the real estate profession exempt from any sort of a business tax, was advanced by the speaker as one reason why the bill failed to pass.

In speaking for an increase of pay for the lawmakers, Senator Carson declared that many men cannot afford to spend 90 days in Salem with no more compensation than is not provided for. He expressed the opinion that annual sessions would tend to speed up legislation and would present an opportunity to correct mistakes without having to wait two years.

The speaker advocated a change in the rules of procedure and credited Senator Richard Neuberger of Multnomah county with being a brilliant man.

Tag Day Benefit Sale on Saturday

Approximately 50 Salem senior high school band and orchestra parents spent a third week evening at the school cafeteria Thursday assembling 19,000 tags which will be distributed Saturday during a "tag day" benefit sale.

Those engaged in the task expressed confidence that they will raise the $1500 needed to send some 80 young musicians to Klamath Falls, May 12, 13 and 14 for participation in the state music contest. Approximately $800 has been raised through tag sales at various events, a band concert and contributions from business and professional men.

Those engaged in the task of assembling the tags were Mrs. Ernest Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett, Mrs. Ralph Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Manke, Jr., Mrs. E. R. Owens, Mrs. Harold Gillespie, Mrs. H. Lehman, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Engdahl, Mrs. P. H. Ringle, Mr. and Mrs. Ursule Wolfner, Mrs. Esther Little, Don Jessup, band director, and Victor Palmason, orchestra leader.

LeRoy J. Stewart Out for School Board

LeRoy J. Stewart, resident of Salem for the past 21 years, and office manager for the Valley Motor company, Friday announced his candidacy for the office of school board director. He would succeed Donald A. Young, present chairman who announced Thursday that he would retire June 30 after serving for 10 years.

Stewart served on the Riekey school board for two years. In announcing his candidacy he said he was doing so merely because he felt every citizen had an obligation to perform in the operation of the various phases of government. He is the father of four children.

Prior to moving to Salem Stewart spent 10 years in Astoria. He is currently serving as president of the Salem Lions club. Completed petitions seeking to place Stewart in nomination were expected to be filed late Friday.

Wyatt to Speak At C C Luncheon

"Names make news, and so does this name." A bit paraphrased, maybe. But the man who coined the words, familiar to thousands of radio listeners, will be the speaker Monday noon at the Chamber of Commerce.

He is Jim Wyatt, KOIN news broadcaster of Five Star Final. His subject will be "What Can We Do to Foster World Peace."

Wyatt's broadcast has been heard for 12 years and has a national record in never having had a change in sponsorship. He has a high Hooper rating, which means a lot in the field of radio.

Wyatt is a native of Canada. He got his education there, and in World War I was with the First Canadian division. He has lived in Oregon since 1923.

New members to be introduced Monday will be: Chris Kunkel and Louisa Knapp, Broadway Superettes, 484 South Liberty; Olan S. Olson and Clarence R. Rickard, Reiser Real Estate & Insurance, 685 Commercial; Thomas Myra, district representative of Kraft Foods company, 78 E. Stevens; B. E. Groat, storer, 4200 North River road; E. H. Barkhoffer, with Curtis Publishing company, 1905 Madison; H. W. Eckerman, investment representative of Equitable Savings and Loan association, 3225 Bevilacqua; H. D. Schneider, M. D., 708 Lavesley building; E. L. Gray, Gray & Hummel Realty company, 1345 North Capitol; Anna H. Carr, manager, W. P. Fuller & Co., 131 South Liberty; W. P. ### DeMolay Rules City for a Day

The mayor of Salem and department heads of the city looked eagerly out of their doors today in the hope that their anterooms would be jammed with complaining citizens.

They were all hoping to see the hard-to-please type of citizen come pounding on their doors. The reason was the fact that they were on "vacation" for a day as youthful members of the Order of DeMolay took over department functions at noon.

Louis Lorenz became mayor for a day, substituting for Mayor R. L. Elfstrom. Other DeMolay department heads were: Bob Meany, city manager; Howard Wilson, chief of police; Merlin Shultz, fire chief; Bob McConville, police judge; Don Hughes, recorder; Daryl Girod, treasurer; Jim Rock, city engineer.

McConville was slated to sit on banc with Judge W. W. McKinney on two minor police court cases in the afternoon. Regular Police Chief Clyde A. Warren asked desk sergeants to relay all ticket complaints to his shadow, Wilson.

DeMolay officials were entertained at a noon luncheon with their real life counterparts.

Oregon Ties for Pedestrian Safety

Oregon tied with Connecticut for first place in the 1948 American Automobile association's pedestrian protection contest. Governor Douglas McKay was advised yesterday of the award, which is based on reduction in pedestrian deaths.

No Depression Asserts Fisher

J. H. Fisher, credit manager for Meier and Frank stores in Portland, advised members of the Salem credit association Friday to base their work on information secured before accounts are opened.

"Look before you leap," Fisher advised as he detailed operations of Meier and Frank's 100,000 credit account business. He said his years of experience in the credit field had convinced him that the time to protect himself was in the beginning of a credit transaction rather than at the end.

Fisher forecast a leveling off period for business rather than a recession or depression as many businessmen predicted after the contractions of business during the winter months.

"There's still too much money yet in this country waiting to be spent for us to have a depression," he summarized.
