The Case for Durocher

"I can't stand the guy, but I think he's getting a raw deal," summed up the reaction in connection with the recent Leo Duro-cher case, in the opinion of Arthur Daley, columnist for the New cher case, in the opinion of Arthur Daley, columnist for the New Schools with both boys and girli York Times. Durocher has been accused of striking and kicking as fan who had ridden him hard during the course of a ball game. Commissioner Chandler subsequently cleared The Lip of any responsibility for the affair. "The most amazing part about the bizarre who-hit-whom Polo Grounds mystery is the way public opinion has rallied to the support of Leo Durocher, hitherto the most hated man in baseball," continues Daley. "What waverers there were promptly jumped over on the Lips' side of the fence when the impatient Happy Chandler hastily suspended the Giant manager without any catual basis for it, a condemnatory action in itself."

Protection Suggested

"Although it might seem like locking the barn door after the horse is stolen, it is about time that ball players are given the protection they deserve from the milling crowds when the game ends," writes Daley. "The fans swarm out of the stands and engulf the players who frequently have to fight their way to the clubhouse. Cap snatching and glove stealing is an almost daily occurrence... The Polo Grounds is the worst place of all because the clubhouse there is beyond centerfield and the players from both teams have to make what they call the 'death march' every day."

Would Control Heckling

"Supposedly one of the beauties of our great American game is the opportunity it affords for anyone to shout 'Kill the umpire' and to ride ball players, managers or whomsoever they please. But a line must be drawn, drawn sharply, in regard to blabbermouths who oversten the bounds of decement and contains a feet of a 9.2 defeat at the who overstep the bounds of decency and good taste. Not only is it a grevious affront to their victims but also to everyone within earshot." Speaking of what he terms "lowest and most vicious sort of personalities." the Times scribe continues: "Park police should heave such offenders out into the street. Not only are the players being insulted but so is everyone else within hearing, par-ticularly women and children. League officials have restrained the uncouth language of the players themselves. It's about time some authority. Chandler for instance, to put the same restraint the foul-mouthed spectator."

A Toast to Al Spaeter

And in connection with the practice of heckling, the riding which Al Spaeter, Salem's second sacker has had to absorb doesn't tend to help his batting average. However, Al has shown indications of snapping out of it as his base blows during the last three games of the Victoria series well demonstrated. strate. Spacier, born in Los Angeles and a graduate of Free-mont high school and the University of Southern California, last season established a Western International league record when he participated in 129 double plays. This is his fourth professional baseball. He hit .353 in 1946, .265 in '47 and .280 last season. Defensively, there is no better second sacker in the league and if he can pull his hitting up to a more substantial mark he is bound to go higher.

Served in War

Following a 3 by year hitch with the navy, about equally di-vided between Europe and Japan, Spaeter came back to grad-uate in business administration at the Trojan institution. He played four years of baseball there, serving as capain of the team for one season. He joined Portland in July, 1946, and saw his first pro experience in a game against Oakland. Al is unmarried and has a brother, Bill, playing first base with the Scranton, Pa-club of the Eastern league. While in Salem Spacter lives at the club of the Eastern league. While in Salem Spacter lives at the John Farrar home, a place that has proved most hospitable to many ball players.
