Times have changed since Farmer Burns, that stalwart lowa citizen who dedicated his life to the Burns, that stalwart lowa citizen who dedicated his life to the one all-consuming idea: "that there was no other profession so honorable as wrestling." At any rate Burns challenged Billy Papke, former middleweight boxing champion to a bout and in 18 seconds had the puglilists' shoulder on the mat. Which may or may not prove anything as to the merits of the art of self defense of wrestling or boxing. A thorough knowledge of what some branches of the armed forces taught early in the late war no doubt tops anything a person could possibly p sess in the art of self defense.
