

Krug Approves Basin Program

Washington, May 19 (AP) — Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug today approved a revised irrigation and power development program for the Columbia river basin providing for expenditure of $700,000,000 on 14 water resources projects.

In forwarding the revised program to governors of the basin states for their comment, Krug emphasized that it does not imply "that it is a satisfactory substitute for a Columbia valley administration."

The revised program would provide irrigation for more than 300,000 acres of land. It would develop more than 1,000,000 kilowatts of additional hydro-electric generating capacity.

The initial program "provides for the establishment of a basin account to extend financial assistance for power revenues to irrigation through a pooling principle which encompasses use of revenues from existing and potential federal projects in the entire Pacific northwest," Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus said in a statement.

Among projects proposed for the first stage of the plan are: Hells Canyon project, Idaho-Oregon; Canby project, Oregon; Crooked River project, Oregon; Bully Creek extension, Vale project, Oregon; west unit, Dalles project, Oregon; Grand Coulee dam flood control modifications, Washington.

Food Prices Drop 2 Cents on Index

New York, May 19 (AP) — Wholesale food prices declined two cents today to $5.66 on the Dun and Bradstreet index, equalling the 28-month low reached last Feb. 8.

At $5.66 for the week ended May 17, the index compares with $5.68 a week ago and $6.91 a year ago. Since the corresponding period in 1948, the index has dipped 18 percent, the agency pointed out.

The all-time high was $7.36, reached July 13 last year and the all-time low $4.99, on Jan. 31, 1933.

The index is the total of the price per pound for 31 foods in general use.
