Hot-Dog to Lose Red Dress; To Appear in Disappointed Tan

Denver (AP)—Alas, another sight dear to the hearts of all of us prepared to bid its adieu today. The hot-dog, that faithful standby in fair weather or foul, is about to be drained of one of its most charming attributes. No longer will it appear in its taste-tempting red dress in Colorado. Seems a Denver housewife who remains nameless, became irritated when the red-dye frank turned her sauerkraut red when the two were cooked together.

Shortly after she made her complaint known to state health authorities, the "boom was lowered." The department said that after June 15, the hot dog was to appear at the butcher's in its unglamorized color — a sort of disappointed tan.

Ralph Lemburg, owner of a local meat company, said, "I'll be like handling a beautiful woman who hasn't her makeup on. In essence it's all there but it just won't seem the same."

Manufacturers said that the red, a pure vegetable coloring, is used to make the wiener more appetizing in appearance.

But, the ketchup should do the trick from now on—if you like ketchup.

102-Year-Old Vet Evicted

Los Angeles, May 20 (AP)—William A. Magee, 102-year-old campaigner whose military career includes service in the Civil War, the Indian Wars and the Spanish-American War, today had notice to vacate the small apartment he shares with a sister.

Repeated attempts to find a small house or apartment on the ground floor so Magee would not have a stairway to climb have been unsuccessful, his sister, Miss Isabelle Magee, said.

A retired master sergeant, Magee enlisted in the 12th Ohio volunteer cavalry in 1863 and took part in Sherman's march through Georgia. He retired from the service following the Spanish-American war.
