The picture was taken by a photographer who himself boarded the plane a moment later. At right is an armed Nationalist soldier. (AP Wirephoto)

Leadbetter's Estate Valued

Oregon real and personal property in the estate of Frederick William Leadbetter, lumber and pulp manufacturer who died December 22 in Los Angeles, were valued at $276,687.50 in an inventory and appraisal filed for probate in Portland Saturday.

Properties listed include a residence at 2407 S.W. Park place, valued at $50,000, furnishings at $15,000, three pieces of real property in Clackamas county valued at $14,000, and two parcels in Lincoln county near Otter Rock valued at $7,000. The remainder, valued at approximately $190,000, consists of about 2500 acres of land near the Swift & Co. packing plant in North Portland.

This last named property is placed by the will in a trust with the income to go to Willamette university. Trustees of the fund are to be Truman W. Collins and the chairman of the trustees of Willamette university.

The widow, Caroline P. Leadbetter, who is chief beneficiary under the will, receives the home in Portland, the family home in Santa Barbara and a ranch near Las Vegas. The residue of the estate is set up in trusts for Mrs. Leadbetter. Personal effects are to be divided among the four children, Pitcock Leadbetter, Dorothy L. Teren, Elizabeth Cronin and Georgiana L. Andrae, now Mrs. Alfonso de Albuquerque, and a grandchild, Henry L. Andrae.

The will provides that a sister, Sally, and a sister-in-law, Vida Leadbetter, are to be provided with an income of $150 monthly for life. Seven employees receive $500 plus $100 for each year employed. Some other employees receive $1500 and still others $200 plus $100 for each year of employment.

Mr. Leadbetter was president of Oregon Pulp and Paper company, Columbia River Paper Mills, and at the time of his death was a member of the board of directors of The Oregonian Publishing company.

Former Resident Back
Grand Island—Mrs. Sophia Buffington, 85, of Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Boger, both 81, of Tigard were Friday afternoon guests of friends here and at Unionvale. The women are sisters. Mr. and Mrs. Boger formerly resided here when their home was the farm now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Will.

Mrs. Boger taught several terms in the schools in both districts while residing in this neighborhood.

New Record—Members of Carrier Air Group Five gather on and about the Navy's flying boat Marshall Mars at the Alameda Naval Air Station, Calif., just before the giant plane took off for San Diego with the record passenger load. The 301 men, plus seven crew men, is 38 more men than a Mars type plane has ever carried. Mattresses were spread on the deck to give the men a place to sit during the 2½-hour flight. Harland Family Gets Publicity

Dallas—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harland and family of Rickreall are featured in a major article in the June issue of Country Gentleman magazine.

Eleven color pictures on a two-page spread show the family at work and play, and the article is continued on parts of seven other pages with more pictures in black and white.

Written by Margaret Gelbach and F. J. Kellholz with photographs by Claud Palmer, the article describes the Harland's battle to hold their farm through depression times and how they developed it into a modern, up-to-date place free of debt.

One farm family is chosen each month for an article on "Good Farming, Good Living," and each family is from a different state. The selection of the Harland family was made through the cooperation of the Oregon State college extension service after county agents had suggested names from their separate localities.

The entire Harland family has always been very active in Polk county, the parents in farm, community and church affairs and the children in school. Joe at present is president of the Farmers Union Cooperative Warehouse, a position which he has held for five years. Children are Bill, 19, a student at Oregon State college, Betty, 17, and Bob, 15, both in Dallas high school, and Barbara, 12, student of Rickreall grade school.

Store at Woodburn Resumes Operations

Woodburn—The N. C. Hudson Co., successor to "Tremaines" opened the store for business Thursday. The store has not been open since the death of V. W. Tremaine, the former owner in January of this year.

The new owners are Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Hudson, formerly of Vancouver, Wash., both of whom will be active in operation of the business. Local employees are Mrs. Max Warring and Mrs. A. J. Beck.
