Grains Bound Up In Late Trade

Chicago, June 11 (P-The grain market overcame the influence of a highly optimistic official crop report and bound-ed up in late dealings today. Trading was active with a good

Tracing was active with a good deal of short covering account-ing for much of the market's strength. Mill buying gave wheat sup-extended to less than a cent and largely reflected an agri-culture department est im a te this year's total crop would be the second largest on record. Many grain men discounted this estimate. They said it would be the highest of the year. The reason for this view was an increase in reports of crop deterioration in the southwest because of recent rains. Some of these rains have been very
