A total of 12.78 miles of relocated highway far above the dam and the reservoir that will be created by the stored water back of the Detroit dam, is expected to be completed late in July. Of the total road work Kukukenberg Construction company is doing the largest share and Guy F. Atkinson company the remainder. The Port Construction company is rapidly completing high bridges over Tumblo and Breitbush creeks.

Bridges and road work will cost approximately $4,330,000 with 3.5 miles yet to be contracted at an additional estimated cost of $1,060,000.

Guests at Albany
Members of the caravan were guests of the Albany Chamber of Commerce at luncheon Saturday after which the party was taken to Fern Ridge dam, completed in 1941, and given a preview of the recreational features that will be available on the lake that will be formed by the construction of the Detroit dam.

For two hours members of the party were taken on speed and sail boats by members of the Eugene Yacht club and were favored with a sail boat race in which 12 boats participated. An overnight stop at Eugene was made and on Sunday the party was given a bird's eye view of the railroad and relocation work being performed by the army engineers in connection with the Meridian dam on the middle fork of the Willamette river.

Railroad Being Moved
Twenty-three miles of the main line of the Southern Pacific railroad is being moved from its present location, which will be in the Meridian reservoir area, to a route high above the present route. Also being relocated are 14 miles of Highway 58 and a portion of some forest roads.

Dine at Mess Hall
The Dorena Construction company was host to a luncheon given in the mess hall at Dorena dam Sunday afternoon after which members of the caravan viewed the cement portion of the dam through which the Row river flows.

In this case it is stated that the cost of building the bridge is not in excess of such cost.

Graduates Hear Dr. Knight On Basic Philosophies

"In these days our educational process must be tested by whether or not it is adequately equipping individuals for democratic living. The college trained man is the well educated man only when his college experience implies certain basic philosophies." With these statements as a background, Dr. John L. Knight, of Lincoln, Neb., president-elect of Baldwin-Wallace college of Ohio, went on to develop these "basic philosophies" during his address before the graduating class of Willamette university Sunday afternoon.

"We need to reevaluate our educational process," said Dr. Knight as he took up the philosophy of education. "The liberal arts college is not simply an American tradition, it is an American necessity. Specialization in education is not producing the well grounded, well rounded citizenry prerequisite to a well ordered democracy."

"Effective living requires that a man be the speaker in the universe," said the speaker in connection with the philosophy of the universe. And speaking of the "Philosophy of History" he said: "To see history as a corrective to human misbehavior rather than a futile series of recurring cycles saves one from total disillusionment and offers hope of a better world. History reveals man's nobility and greatness as well as his stupidity."

Of a "Philosophy of Human Rights" Dr. Knight stated: "We need to recapture the basic idea of the rights of free men in a free society. The democratic principle of human rights and the Christian principle of human worth both require the abolition of social, racial, national and religious prejudice and bigotry."

"Intelligence and intelligence are not synonymous. The college which produces simply the intellectual elite is contributing to neither democratic processes nor wholesome living," said Dr. Knight in speaking of "A Philosophy of the Common Life."

The commencement program included the conferring of degrees by President G. Herbert Smith, the issuing of the honorary degree of doctor of laws to Dr. Knight and the degree of doctor of divinity to Rev. Charles B. Harrison, a Willamette graduate and now a Methodist minister in Columbus, Ohio; the singing of the traditional "Farewell Willamette" by Edith Fairham and vocal solos by William Utley, a graduate of 1938.

The senior class of some 240 students, was the largest in the history of the university. Late Saturday afternoon the university trustees elected Herbert Hardy, Portland attorney to a place on the board. He is a graduate of 1934.

Chief Scientists

No isotopes have been sent to Russia, but some have gone to neighboring Finland and Norway.

He said that if the Norwegians found a way to make steel more resistant to heat — a discovery that would be of only "slight" value to them but of "enormous" value to the United States.

He added, in response to a question by Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.), that "999 times out of 1000" the United States would make better use of any scientific discovery than Russia.
