Joost Contends for Homer

New York, June 17 UB—Eddie Joost, tall, skinny, and bespectacled, a fellow who doesn't look as if he could even lift a ball bat let alone swing one, was an amazing but deadly serious battler for the major league home run championship today. The Philadelphia Athletics' shortstop is a neighborhood sissy type if ever you saw one. But in spite of his Frank Sinatray two games of second place at physique, Joltin' Joost has smashed 15 home runs, more in the eighth and the winning than anybody else in the majors tally in the ninth off Relief except Vern Stephens, a much more robust chap, who is short-stop for the Boston Red Sox. He has 15, too.
