Bobby Soxers and Mothers Find Room in Modeling Field

Chicago (U.P.)—Two of the most beautiful girls in Chicago have cheering words for the starry-eyed bobby soxers of the nation's kitchens and classrooms. Modeling, they said, is not overcrowded. And there may even be room for bobby soxers' mothers.

The girls, Patricia Stevens and Patricia Vance, run modeling schools and placement agencies.

But the girls said that doesn't mean they try to fill up their institutions with a lot of aspirants who don't have potentialities. In fact, they discourage some applicants.

They feel, however, the hundreds of girls are missing out on modeling careers just because they think they couldn't make good.

Miss Vance, a Philadelphian, said that out of 1000 girls on a typical American campus, probably 200 to 300 could make livings as professional models and command salaries of $60 to $80 a week.

"Many girls," she said, "have the mistaken idea that to be a model you must be tall and thin and sophisticated looking. That may be true in New York, but not in the Midwest. Here, the clients like healthy, natural-looking girls—the kind that look good eating candy bars."

Miss Stevens, a native of Sioux Falls, S.D., went along with this and added that some of the emancipated-type around New York would find slim pickings in the Midwest and probably would get even more emaciated.

More curves are demanded in this part of the country, she said.

The girls, both of whom are ex-models, said their profession was much more in demand and getting more so. More advertising is the reason, they explained.

There are a lot of calls these days for the "matron" type, they said, such as is found around the typical American home, the kind of woman who might have a daughter who wanted to be a model.

"You don't have to be a classic beauty," Miss Vance said. "What the clients want is the new type—the fresh type."

They said there is no basic physical requirements of modeling, but that it would help if the girls could wear a "straight size" dress without alteration, and the shoe size small.

"A girl with a 4B foot can find plenty of work at around $35 a day during shoe conventions," Miss Stevens observed.

Checks Now Allowed In Mail to Japan

Now effective is a new regulation of the U. S. post office permitting mail articles for Japan to contain checks, drafts, payment orders, or other credit or financial instruments.

Currency in such mail is still prohibited.

Registry service has been put in effect by the postal administration of the Philippine republic, therefore Postal Union articles will be accepted for service when presented for registration to any destination in the Philippines.

Judge Handles 9 Crime Cases

Nine criminal cases were before Judge George R. Duncan Monday afternoon with some sentences imposed.

Mrs. Delores Todd, wife of Jack O'Neill Todd, who made a futile effort at escape from the county jail June 5, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of giving him aid, and was continued for pre-sentence investigation. She also has been bound over to the grand jury on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics.

Other prisoners up were Leslie Grazer, obtaining money by false pretenses, six months suspended jail sentence; Robert Osborn, contributing to the delinquency of a minor, suspended jail sentence of a year and on probation three years; Nellie Axberg, obtaining money by false pretenses, on probation for two years; Donald O. Jones, continued to July 1 for arraignment, Lawrence Ostermann named as attorney to defend against a charge of escape from the penitentiary; Clyde L. Maitland, charged with escape, continued for trial date; John Edward Ralph charged with arson, pleaded not guilty, continued for trial date.

Reuben Partlow, Jr., sentenced to a year on an arson charge, asked for attorney to perfect appeal, Paul LeRoy Gardner sentenced to two years on arson charge, to run concurrently with present prison sentence, the latter two having been convicted of having assisted in setting fire to a pile of flax at the state penitentiary.

Rich Maharajah Dies of Pneumonia

Bombay, India, June 21 (U.P.)—Prince Jagatjit, Singh Bahadur, Maharajah of Kapurthala, 76, one of the richest men in the world, died Sunday of pneumonia.

Today his body was carried by plane to his state in northwest India for cremation according to the rites of the Sikh religion.

The Maharajah, who ascended the throne when only five, was recently elected deputy governor of the Patiala and East Punjab state union in the new dominion of India.

A brilliant linguist and scholar, educated at Oxford university, England, he had represented India several times in the League of Nations. He was decorated by many foreign governments including those of France, Chile, Peru, Cuba and Iran.

In 1948, the average American ate 145 pounds of meat.
