

Governor Put Car in Hock

Tallahassee, Fla., June 22 (AP)—Gov. Fuller Warren, who will be married Sunday, Tuesday hocked his 1948 Cadillac sedan for $3,000.

Because of Florida's financial plight, Warren said he is going to postpone drawing his $1,000 a month salary for three months and today he signed a note putting up his auto as security for money he said would be necessary to tide him over.

State legislator, Rep. Marcus Frank of Ocala, called the governor's gesture "ham acting." He offered to lend Warren the money he intended to keep him from starving.

The governor replied: "Marcus, my frugal friend, as to ham acting you should know."

He called Frank a "propagandist" and suggested the legislator give his help to the "old people, dependent children and blind who will be cut in July because the state does not have funds to pay the money appropriated by the legislature."

Florida's legislature adjourned a few weeks ago after okaying a $240,000,000 biennial budget but did not set up sufficient means to finance it.

Warren will fly to California where he is to be married Sunday to Barbara Manning.
