

Winning Big Radio Prize Isn't Always Pure Fun

By JACK QUIGG

Los Angeles (AP)—Ever wonder what happens to people who win those fantastic assortments of prizes put up by radio shows? Does hitting the jackpot put them on easy street? And how do they pay their income tax?

Let's look in on a couple of them and see if winning a pot of gold is as much fun as it sounds.

Mrs. Marie Spangler, 25-year-old wife of a Glendale, Calif., engineer, cleaned up $26,000 on the "hit-the-jackpot" program only a few weeks ago. Her problems—such as what to do with a $3,000 gold-plated lawnmower—are just beginning.

The other winner qualifies as a veteran. The "people are funny" show handed her $20,000 worth of prizes more than a year ago. Her life is just now settling back to normal. She is Mrs. Ward George, 33, of Chatsworth, Calif., and if they ever meet, she could probably pass on some good advice to Mrs. Spangler.

Mrs. Spangler is still in the excited stage. But although she has yet to receive her new sedan, diamond-crusted wristwatch and $1,000 worth of dancing lessons, she is already mulling ways to get out from under the deluge.

She's worried, too, about income tax. The bureau of internal revenue told her, she says, that it will be at least 20 per cent of her winnings.

Mrs. Spangler hit her jackpot via telephone. But Mrs. George got the full Hollywood treatment. She was flown to filmland from her Lebanon, Ore., home and quartered in a plushy hotel.

On her big night she answered the $20,000 question to the pop of flashblubs and the click of press agents' typewriters. Hers was what the program glowingly termed "a complete new future."

It was to include: A three-bedroom home, $4,600 worth of furnishings, double garage, a 2,000 lot of her choice in Los Angeles, a new car and her pick of a job in any of a score of Southern California industries.

In Lebanon Mrs. George had lived with her husband in what she described as a 16 by 20-foot shack built of lumber rejected by a nearby mill. They were $800 in debt on the $850 purchase price.

Her husband suffered from malaria and a nervous condition contracted overseas and was listed at 100 per cent disabled, she said. Though they had long wanted to come to California for his health, they had been unable to afford it.

Mrs. George got her house, a production line job in a large tract in the San Fernando valley. But she didn't have it long. She learned that gifts, even the radio variety, are classed as earned income and are taxable.

Uncle Sam's share was $6,800.

Valley Men on Phone Board

Names of several Willamette valley and western Oregon men appear on the list of directors of the Oregon Independent Telephone association elected at the convention in Spokane.

Earl Dean of Hood River was re-elected president of the association.

The convention was held jointly with the Washington association at the Davenport hotel in Spokane, June 17 and 18. Gail Wells of Sheridan was re-elected vice president and Leslie A. Gritten of Everett, Wash., secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected were: Harley Barber, Waldport; Eth-

Beaten—Clarke Stallworth (above), Birmingham Post-reporter, was lured into a hardware store and beaten by two men in Sumner, Ala., where he was investigating reports of violence committed by hooded mobs. (Acme Telephone photo)

Portland May Lose Disbursing Office

Portland, Ore., June 23 (AP)—Seattle soon may get the regional disbursing office of the federal treasury.

The office, now located in the federal courthouse here, may have to move if congress approves a proposal for appointment of a third federal judge phone committee on rural service.
