Only the Brave

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN (Chapter 16)

(Chapter 16)

Jeff had hat finished his work when Job King arrived. At sign of Jeb his eyes warmed and he invited the Crown owner to alight and come into the house, "Glenn told us about the polsonin of your Herefords," Jeb said "It's the diriest kind of trick, and I can't believe any catteman, even Chuck Gale, could do such a taling," "That's right, Mr. King. It does not look like the work of a cattleman, yet Chuck's the only man it can think of that owes me a gridge."

Jeff made a tired gesture.

"Good evenin," Mister Glesson," and Sling Benjamin.
Glesson got slowly to his feet
"What are you doing here?"
Sling came forward to the edge of the light, his hand resting lightly
on the but of the gun on his hin
"Just a friendly little call, Mister Glesson, to collect my share of the dust you pinched from Sam Tolson' cabin."
Glenn rounded his deck and sai

Gleanon, to collect my share of the dust you pinched from Sam Tolson's cabin."

Glenn rounded his desk and sat down on a corner. "I don't get the loke, I didn't steal Sam's gold."

"My hunch still saw you got it, insisted Slug coldy. "I don't know now much you got, but I'll settle for five hundred tollars' worth."

"You'll settle for five hundred. And you certainly have gail, Sing, intended to got in the second, it's you who sween one it we hundred. And you seen owe me for about ten dollars' worth of grub you look, to say nothing of the horse and risy to used."

"Don't be funny," advised Slug. "You can write that extry five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. Just like you'll write this five hundred off against experience. the desk and seating himself. The Derringer did not waver. He sat there for a moment thinking. "I guess I ought to hand you over to the law, Slug You'd hang, you know. But that wouldn't get me the five hundred you owe me, would 12. Or do you happen to have It with you. Slug?"

He got inp, came around the desk, his gun still menacing the man.

Turn around. Keep your hands

"That's right, Mr. Ring. It does not look like the work of a castleman, yet Chuck's the only man I can think of that owes me a grudge."

Jeff made a tired gesture. That's all right as a theory, what I've got to have before I can make a move is proof. The best think to do is to try and trace that poison."

"Find out what it was?"

"Arsenie."

"Arsenie."

"The got to get me a job. Fact is. Mr. King. I intended saking you if you could use another hand on the Grown."

"I sure could; but not you, Jeff You're cut out for bigger things than just ridin' range. Why no let me stock you up? Business proposition entirely. I'd hold a mortage on the stock and the homestead."

"No, sir. I appreciate the offer more than I can say, but I'm going to shand on my own feet or to be could be bottom drawer. To be Continued."
