Leaves Fountain Lunch — W. H. Porter has filed with the county clerk his notice of retirement from Purple Cow, fountain lunch at 3915A State street.

Acceptance Delayed — It is likely that acceptance of Circuit Judge E. M. Page of the appointment of justice of the supreme court tendered him by Governor Douglas McKay may be delayed several days while he completes circuit court business here. At least two cases are still undecided. One of these will be delayed until at least after July 1 as attorneys have been given to that date in which to file briefs. The jurist was unable Tuesday to fix any definite date for his acceptance.

Advised of Death — Mrs. H. William Thielsen has received word of the death of her niece, Mrs. E. P. Stone which occurred at 5 p.m. Monday at Central Point. Mrs. Stone was the former Miss Marie Smith who taught in Salem schools for several years and had a wide acquaintance here. Surviving here also is a brother, Hollis Smith, mayor of Dallas. School Board Meets — The Salem school board will hold a reorganization meeting Tuesday night. It is presumed Harry Scott, who is beginning his final year of a five year term, will be advanced to the chairmanship. He will replace Donald Young, who retired after serving 10 years on the board. Roy Stewart will be sworn in as a board member.

Attends Funeral — County Judge Grant Murphy was in Vancouver, Wash., Tuesday attending the funeral of a relative.

Rotary Luncheon — Quentin Johnston, professor of law at Willamette university, will speak on the "Law Clinic" during Wednesday's luncheon meeting of the Salem Rotary club.

Page Appointed — After returning from service in the first world war in 1919, Judge Page became a member of the firm of McNary, Keyes and Page, which included the late Federal Judge John H. McNary, Walter E. Keyes and himself. He was very active in handling the successful campaign of Charles L. McNary for the United States senate.

When Marion county was made a separate judicial district in 1941 he was appointed as one of the two judges to serve this county. He was elected in 1942 and re-elected at last November's general election for a six year term.

From 1920 until the time he was elevated to the circuit bench, Judge Page served as instructor in the Willamette university college of law.

Judge Page is a member of the Oregon state and the American bar association. He is also affiliated with the American Legion, the Elks, Masons and Salem Rotary club.

Richard Page, son of Judge and Mrs. Page, recently graduated from Stanford university and is now doing vacation work in Salem, preparatory to returning to Stanford for post graduate work.

Among the most prominent names mentioned for appointment to the circuit bench are Wallace Carson, prominent Salem attorney and District Judge Joe Felton.

Communicable Disease — The Marion county health department reports 26 instances of communicable disease during the week ending June 25. The list includes three cases of tuberculosis, three gonorrhoea, two ringworm, two impetigo, two measles, one broncho pneumonia, one virus pneumonia, one German measles, one whooping cough, one chickenpox and nine syphilis.

Band Rehearsal — The Salem high school band will hold two marching rehearsals Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30 at the high school in preparation for participation in the Cherryland festival parade of Friday. The band is directed by Don Jessup.

Call for Bids On City Sewer — If satisfactory bids are made the city will abandon the plan to do the excavating and lay the pipe for the interceptor sewer project and let a contract instead.

City Manager J. L. Franzen, at his recommendation, was authorized by the council Monday night to call for bids. His reason was that on the "must" list is a drainage problem in the north part of the city that must be taken care of before next winter, and that if it is done the engineering crew will have to be relieved from the sewer job.

Some temporary work is on the drainage program, and permanent work will have to await more available funds, but the temporary work is considered absolutely necessary before winter to avoid another flooding of the area.

Three other drainage jobs will also be taken care of, one in south Salem, and the other two involving Shelton ditch and Mill creek.

To finance the sewer construction City Manager Franzen introduced an ordinance bill for the sale of $215,000 in sewer bonds.

House Refuses — Administration forces grabbed complete control yesterday smothering a republican-southern democrat coalition, and beat back all efforts to substitute or amend the administration bill.

These were major provisions of the bill as it stood after yesterday's debate:

1. The federal government would contribute up to $308,000,000 a year for 40 years toward construction by local authorities of 810,000 publicly-owned dwelling units. Federal contributors would meet the difference between the low rents and the amount necessary to pay off the long-range cost of building and operation.

2. A $262,500,000 program would provide housing loans for farmers who could not get credit elsewhere, with grants in some cases for housing on farms that are not self-sustaining.

3. Three other drainage jobs will also be taken care of, one in south Salem, and the other two involving Shelton ditch and Mill creek.

To finance the sewer construction City Manager Franzen introduced an ordinance bill for the sale of $215,000 in sewer bonds.

Salem Rents — "rent control was the most unfair thing ever foisted upon the people, and that labor costs had been increased four times since rent control became effective."

Madison Offers Pledge — Among others speaking for decontrol were two labor union members who also own housing rental units, although organized labor petitioned heavily to keep rents under control.

Don Madison, housing owner, said he would pledge himself not to increase his total take on rentals if control was removed, but would want a readjustment. He said he would "be glad to freeze his rentals at 1945 figures if labor would do the same for wages."

John Williams, owner of the Ambassador apartments, said his rents would not be increased one dollar if controls were removed, and J. B. Fretzman said decontrol was necessary "for those who depend on rentals for a living." Roy Adsett said if controls were removed "rents would adjust themselves the same as groceries."

Herbert E. Barker, executive secretary of the Salem Trades and Labor council, said his organization was on record as against decontrol. To show that landlords are not suffering under control he said that since January 1 the rents of 80 Salem units have been advanced 25 per cent, but he said that where control has been removed rents have gone up 55 per cent.

Barker Answers Criticism — "There is only one reason for decontrol," said Barker, "and that is to increase rents."

He said the average wage is $51 to $55 a week. Replying to those who cited high labor costs, he said "high wages don't amount to much when the wage worker works only six or seven months of the year."

Lee Coe, speaking for Marion-Polk County Progressive club, said a recent survey showed only 117 units for rent in this area, and high prices were asked.

"Rents went up 66 per cent in Salem," he said, "when we had no control. Tenants need protection, not the landlords."

Hub Saalfeld, county service officer for the veterans' administration, recommended a survey to show whether a housing shortage exists. He said he received many complaints about high rents from veterans and their dependents.

"We realize," he said, "that some landlords are not getting enough, but on the other hand some veterans are paying too much."

E. D. Mabee of the rent control administration said that 50 per cent of the rental housing units in the Salem area are under control, instead of 20 as another speaker has said.

To Move Combine — Forrest C. Turner, route 1, Silverton, has been granted a county court permit to move a combine over county roads.

Car Damaged — Report was made to the county court Tuesday that a car going onto the Buena Vista ferry from the Polk county side caught its bumper on the ferry and damaged it. The car owner said the approach is too steep. The matter will be referred to the Polk county court.

Order Stop Signs — Stop signs have been ordered by the county court to be installed at intersections of Dearborn road with the north river road at both sides of the latter road.
