Measly $100 Grand Insures Shapely Legs of Curvy Cutie

By VIRGINIA MacPHERSON Hollywood (U.P.—Hollywood, we're afraid, is beginning to melow around the edges.

A movie producer who just signed up a curvy cutie with shapely egs insured them today—for a measily $100,000.

This is practically peanuts in a town where movie stars used for rush to Lloyds of London for coverage on everything from "bedroom eyes" to thick, southern drawls.

And if it wasn't a $1,000,000 and fifted the policy, they didn't feel covered. They didn't make headlines, either, and why else would anybody slap down a $7000 premium if he didn't get his name in the papers?

All this makes Producer Nat Holt practically a cheapskate.

Holt practically a cheapskate.
He's breaking another rule, too. He has a sensible reason for insuring Joan Taylor's pretty pins.

Let a pair of cops flag down a high-school gang and the kids tell it this way: "We got jammed slammed by a couple of cossacks on their hot razzes." (Motorcycles)

It's enough to give H. L. Mencken the willies. And it's already driven one screen-writer closer to ulcers than he's come in years of grinding out movies. "We wanted some authentic bobby-sox talk for Shirley (Dimsdale explained weakly." "So I sauntered down to the sweet." Is authered down to the sweet." The sauntered down to the sweet. The sauntered down to the sweet." The sauntered down to the sweet. The sauntered down to the sweet by the widow of the state of the sauntered saunt
