S. P. to Pay Oiling West Stayton Road

County Engineer Hedda Swart has advised the county court he has been approached by a Southern Pacific engineer in regard to oiling the road running south from the West Stayton depot at the expense of the railroad company and property owners. It is a dead end and is not a county road.

The county court has agreed to have the work done when its crew is in that neighborhood under agreement that the Southern Pacific guarantee the cost. In addition, as it is too late for the county to put a prime coat on it, it will be necessary for the company to have the priming done by a private contractor and if this is done the county will undertake to do the work and bill the railroad company for the cost.

Now you know!
The answers to everyday insurance problems
By SID ROISSE

QUESTION: Recently we suffered a fire loss which was paid by our insurance company. Now a friend tells me that my insurance policy expired with the settlement and I must take out a new policy. Is this true?

ANSWER: No entirely unless the insurance company paid you the full amount of the policy. When an insurance company pays you for a fire loss, it deducts the amount paid you from the amount of the policy. Thus, if you had a ten thousand dollar policy and the company paid you five thousand dollars, you would still have five thousand dollars in insurance. However, you should see your insurance agent about having your policy changed to give you adequate protection again.

Hygiene Film At Monmouth

Oregon College of Education, Monmouth, July 12—Students and visitors crowded Campbell hall auditorium at the college Tuesday to see and hear a demonstration of the social hygiene motion picture, "Human Growth," part of an all-day conference sponsored by the Brown Trust of Portland.

Curtis Avery, director of the Brown Trust's activities, outlined the program and Lester Beck of the trust staff conducted a demonstration session with children of the campus elementary school as "audience" while the real audience viewed the proceedings from further back in the auditorium.

The afternoon session featured a panel discussion on all phases of sex hygiene with Dr. Adolph Weinzirl, head of the preventive medicine and public health department of the University of Oregon Medical School, as featured speaker. The conference closed with the summary session at which problems connected with use of the movie and other material supplied by the trust was discussed by all attending.
