Benes to Give Three Lectures

Bohus Benes, former Czechoslovak consul for the western coast, will present the second of a series of three lectures on contemporary world politics on July 20 at 8 p.m. in Waller hall, Willamette university campus. Benes will concentrate on two main topics: The communist coup de force which took over the whole of Czechoslovakia in 1948, and the cause of the failure of the Czechoslovakian democracy in 1948, whether it was the Marshall or the Molotov plan. Benes will give an account of the tragic death of the minister of foreign affairs, Jan Masaryk and the obscure death of the lecturer's uncle, Edward Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia. He will explain why he believes Masaryk was murdered and that his uncle did not die a natural death. Benes will describe how his nation had put its faith in the humanitarian feelings of the Soviet leaders and in what tragedy they lost it. The general public is invited to attend and to take part in the discussion if they so desire. The third and last lecture will be given Aug. 3 at the same hour and place.

Schmidt, who holds bachelor of arts and education degrees from the University of Oregon, previously served as faculty member of a Eugene junior high school. Confirmation of the appointment was held up a few days while Schmidt sought release by the Pendleton board.

32 Foreign Spies

The subcommittee, headed by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), heard also today that the state department has permitted about 10 aliens to enter this country despite recommendations by its visa division that their admission would be against the security interests of the United States.

John E. Peurifoy, deputy undersecretary of state, gave this information. "In how many instances, if at all," the subcommittee asked, "has the state department insisted upon the entry to this country of an alien concerning whom recommendation has been made by the visa division of the department that the entry of such alien is against the security interests of the United States?"

In reply, Peurifoy said: "The visa division states that it does not recall more than approximately 10 cases in which its original recommendation that visas be refused on a security grounds have not been accepted by the superior officers of the department within the last three years."

Peurifoy went before the subcommittee in its study of legislation to bar subversive aliens from this country. His views were presented in writing in reply to questions asked the state.

Army Suspends

complete investigation is now being made.

"The senate subcommittee has evidence which indicates that General Waitt improperly furnished personnel data to an individual not in the military service who was not entitled to receive such data; and that General Feldman furnished to a contractor's representative procurement information under circumstances which appear irregular."

Major General Herman Feldman, whose suspension as quartermaster general was announced by the army today, has been in charge of food buying for all the armed services.

In addition to food buying for the army, air force, navy and marines, he has been responsible for buying clothing and furniture and some other equipment for the army.

Feldman was born in New York City and enlisted in the army as a private in 1907.

For about 20 years Feldman has been in the army's supply service. He became quartermaster general last March.

Both Feldman and Major General Alden H. Waitt, whose suspension as chief of the chemical corps was also announced today, have been decorated several times.

Waitt has a long list of medals, including the distinguished service medal, the legion of merit, and foreign decorations. The latter include the order of the British empire, degree of honorary commander.

Waitt was commissioned in 1917. He served two years in the engineers, then transferred to the gas warfare section. He was appointed chief of the chemical corps in 1945 and has held the temporary rank of major general since then.

Lobster Creek in Benton County

Among the 350 or more bills passed by the 1949 legislature that went into effect at noon Saturday, was one affecting the convenience of about 250 people in Lobster Valley section of Lincoln county who are now in the Lobster Valley section of Benton county, the first change in Benton county lines since 1893.

Regardless of the population, officials of the two counties are facing considerable adjustment in the usual amount of red tape. After this week-end the Lobster-Lincoln people may transact official business in Corvallis, being a part of Benton county, but the Lobster-Lane county people pass right on through to Eugene, the same as they have for years. The original plan called for annexation of a slice of Lane county but it finally was dropped from the provisions of the bill.

Annexation marked the end of a long fight by residents of the valley who sought a change. Their greatest argument was that the shift would be beneficial to school children as in the past they have been transported 35 miles to classes at Waldport. Most of them from now on will be able to attend Benton county schools between eight and ten miles from home. Because of road conditions most of the time the residents were required to come through Alsea, to Corvallis, and thence to Eugene for all official county matters.

The area involved consists of about 12,500 acres with an assessed valuation of around $56,000. First legal step is a $1560 survey to determine what Lincoln county records must be transferred to Benton county.

Long Stay Atop 50 Foot Pole

Revere, Mass., July 16 (U.P.)—Twenty-four-year-old Mrs. Jean Ellis prepared for a long stay atop her 50-foot pole today.

This was her third day of housekeeping in a tidy, box-like home on top of a telegraph pole in the Revere Beach amusement area, but still no offers for an apartment were forthcoming.

Mrs. Ellis took to the air Thursday to publicize her family's need for a low-rental apartment. The action had the approval of her stepfather-husband Arthur, who served as her one-man ground crew.

Ellis was staying at a rooming house and their 4-year-old daughter, Sharon, was being boarded out while the pretty pole sitter feathered her canvas-covered nest with such equipment as an oil heater, an electric plate, rubber mattress, radio, folding chair and magazines to read.

However, a law which sets up a schedule of monthly contributions to be required paid by relatives of needy persons. Such payments to be based on the net income of the relatives.

This law was the product of the joint ways and means committee as the means of forcing children of persons on the old age rolls to make some contribution to the support of the parents. It is expected that the law will eliminate many persons now on the rolls and result in a large saving to the state.

For More School Money

Other important new laws now in force include one designating property used for profit and gambling would be a common nuisance and subject to the penalties under another act, and increasing the basic school fund from $50 to $80 per pupil of census school age. This bill was passed by the legislature and referred to the voters at the November, 1950, election.

Route Chosen

Duties of the state will be to prepare plans and specifications and award the contract, finance the construction from federal funds and enter into an agreement with the railroad company as to the construction.

The petition shows that the grade of the highway approaches will be 5 percent on each side and these will be connected by a vertical curve approximately 1000 feet long.

It is shown that a tabulation for 1948 revealed that there was an average daily volume of cars of 1230 during 1948 over the route with a normal average annual increase expected. The railroad runs an average of two trains a day over this branch.

Inasmuch as following a largely attended hearing before the county court Friday on relative merits of the two proposed routes for the Salem-Silverton highway the court took a decision in the matter under advisement the petition to the public utilities commissioner as to the overpass has been placed on file in court records pending a decision. If and when the court decides favorably on the new route the petition will be brought out and immediately returned to the highway department signed by court members for submission to the utilities commissioner. In event the new routing is abandoned the petition will become so much waste paper.

two amendments to the public employes retirement act providing that employes may continue to work after reaching age 65 years under certain conditions and providing for retirement of Multnomah county employes.
