Employment Aid Proposed

Washington, July 18 (U.P.)—Sen. James E. Murray, (D-Mont.) has introduced an "economic expansion act" aimed at increasing employment through government aids to private industry and long-range public works program. Seventeen other senators joined Murray in sponsoring the bill.

Although several administration democrats were in the group, the measure is not regarded as having official White House backing. But its sponsors said that it is aimed at carrying out many of the 11 main requests President Truman made in his recent economic message. The bill would: 1. Encourage private industry to expand by such incentives as guaranteed loans and a stepped up amortization of debts. It does not provide for building of plants by the government. 2. Extend the so-called 52-20 club and other unemployment benefits for veterans under the GI bill of rights and provide for price, wage, and profit studies. States would have to meet certain standards for unemployment compensations. 3. Set up a bipartisan commission to investigate local, state, and federal tax policies.

PLAN ATTACKS RUN-DOWN HOMES Cities Can Get Grants From U. S. for Housing

(Editor's Note: This is the third of five stories on the government's new housing program).

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, July 11 (U.P.)—This is the government's new public housing program: To start building 810,000 decent low-rent housing units in the next six years for low-income families living now in slums or run-down homes. Once a family's income improves beyond a certain point, it must get out of public housing and find a private dwelling. This makes room for a lower-income family. Over many years people can be helped that way. That's the idea behind the program. The government's main role is all this is helping—with money—cities and communities build the public housing. The government itself won't own or run the housing. The cities and communities will do that. How much will all this cost the government? Congress says no more than $12,320,000,000, spread over 40 years. It can't be spent all at one time. Since government money will be used in public housing, the government will have some control over it. For example: It must approve the plans before any government money is handed out; it will have final say on the size of rents that can be charged. The program will go like this: A city has a lot of families needing decent, low-rent homes. So it wants to build low-rent public housing. Since it has to hire private contractors to do the building, the city may not have enough money to foot the bill. Under this program the government then can help out in two ways: with loans, that have to be paid back, and grants, that don't: 1. Loans—the government can give the cities as much as $1,500,000,000 in loans over the next six years. A city can get a loan up to 90 per cent of the cost of building a public housing project. The government loses nothing on this because the cities must repay the loan, at interest of maybe 2 1/2 to 3 per cent. But they have 40 years to do the repaying. 2. Grants—this is where the government hands out money it never gets back, for a grant is an outright gift.
