

Promising Artist Discovered at Taft—Richard H. Davis, 17, encouraged by the Lincoln county art center, was rewarded with a one-man show in Portland and now has three pieces on display in the Gallery by the Sea at Delake.

Talented Young Artist of Taft Gaining Popularity

By BEN MAXWELL

Discovery and encouragement of new artistic talent, an accepted duty of the Gallery by the Sea of the Lincoln county art center at Delake, is underway, says F. Loren (Larry) Boulter, an associate.

The art center has introduced 17-year-old Richard H. Davis to a wide and appreciative public.

Dick Davis, who has been painting in whatever medium became available ever since he can remember, has lived at Taft for the past 15 years and is now a senior in high school.

His first formal training in art was under the direction of Maude Wanker in 1948, and this spring he was rewarded with a one-man show in Portland where he placed 20 oil paintings, landscapes and portraits on display.

Talent in Demand
At present Dick Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde K. Davis of Taft is taking lessons in water color under Mr. Boulter. Though still a boy, his talent is in demand by coastal businesses needing decoration, and he is regarded the youngest commercial artist in Oregon.

Dick is a shy and reticent fellow and has little to say about his artistic accomplishments. He has never been outside Oregon and has never ridden on a train. After high school he expects to attend art school, but where he has not decided. Certainly he likes to paint but he does not feel that he should now affiliate with any particular school of painting.

The Gallery by the Sea of the Lincoln county art center was founded by Maude Walling Wanker in 1942. She is now director.

When founded, total assets of the art center were $25. Now the association with a membership of about 400 has an investment of $35,000. Support is largely in way of contribution by residents of Lincoln county.

It is a non-profit organization. Oregon Artists Featured Gallery by the Sea opened June 26 with a display of all Oregon artists. Menalkas Selander's works are now the center of attraction and his exhibition will be followed by the western scenes of E. B. Quigley beginning August 14. Works by Richard H. Davis will receive a showing at a somewhat later date.

Lincoln county art center at Delake is open every day except Monday from 1 to 5 o'clock. Week-end visitors have averaged about 200 persons.

Woman Faints in Front of Princess

London, July 21 (AP)—A woman fainted today in the presence of Princess Elizabeth. It was the second such incident in two weeks.

A crowd had waited four hours in front of St. Peter's church to see members of the royal family come to a wedding. Mrs. Edith Rees of London, about 50, collapsed beside a car in which Princess Elizabeth and the prince royal were riding.

The wedding at St. Peter's today was that of Lady Elizabeth, daughter of the late Earl of Cavan, and Mark Longman.

Independence Host Fellowship Meeting

Independence — The fellowship meeting of the Assemblies of God church, section 3, convened at the Presbyterian church where Rev. John Hood is pastor, Evangelist Sorensen, the afternoon speaker, brought a message on "One Thing Have I Desired of the Lord," Psalms 27:4. Dinner was served by the Ladies' Missionary Society of the Independence Assembly of God church at 5 o'clock.

The talent service began at 8:30 with music and singing by the young people from Sweet Home, Lebanon, Albany, Silverton and Independence. The services were climaxed with a Youth for Christ rally. Evangelist Ray Rooks of Joplin, Mo., was the evening speaker. He is also conducting a revival meeting at the Independence Assembly of God church located at Fifth and C streets.

It takes about 19 hours to convert coal into coke.

Reception for Trick

Woodburn — Rev. Ormal B. Trick, the new pastor of the Woodburn Methodist church, will be honored at a reception at the Woodburn library Friday evening, July 22, at 8 o'clock by the members of the congregation. All members and friends of the church are invited to be present.

Dave Robinson Heads F.E.P.C.

David Robinson, Portland attorney with a long record of battling against racial and religious intolerance, is the chairman of Oregon's new fair employment practices commission.

Robinson, president of the Portland City club and a Jewish leader, was elected to head the seven-member group when it held its first meeting here Wednesday.

The commission, which will advise State Labor Commissioner W. E. Kimsey in enforcement of the new law, elected as its secretary Ulysses Plummer, Portland, the only Negro attorney in Oregon.

The law makes it illegal for any employer, labor union or employment agency to deny a job to any person because of his race or religion.

Governor Douglas McKay told the commission today that it must use "common sense to the utmost." He said it must prove that fair employment practices can benefit all.

The governor warned the committee to guard against "perpetrating one injustice in the hope of correcting another injustice."

"It is going to take the wisdom of a Solomon to meet some of these problems. But I feel this committee is capable of fair and impartial dealing with all the situations it will be asked to resolve."

"This is a great experiment. Oregon and civil rights are on trial. So I urge you to do a job that can be looked back upon as a monument to Oregon's far-sighted approach to the task of bettering human relations."

Oregon is one of only six states to have an FEPC law. It was passed by the 1949 legislature.
