

Circus War Not Yet Serious

Denver, Aug. 4 (AP)—Circus officials confirmed today that there was a "circus war" going on, but said it hadn't reached a serious level yet.

A spokesman for the Cole Bros. circus, scheduled to make its last performance here today before entraining for points west, said that the "feeling out" war was going on between Ringling Bros., Beatty Bros., Baily Bros., and Cole Bros., the four train circus companies in the U.S.

"Right now the war consists of fighting each other through advertising means," the Cole Bros. official said. He explained that he thought Ringling Bros., the largest of the four, was the leader in this field.

"Every town we go to we find that Ringling has used 'wait paper' against us. This means that they insert ads in the papers which say 'wait for the big show'."

New Teaching Group Formed

Monmouth—The Future Teachers of America is an organization having 32 members as of spring term on this campus. The OCE group will receive its national charter from the NEA in Washington, D. C., early in the coming fall term.

Temporary officers were elected during the latter part of the spring term. They are: Herman H. Hohnson, president; Elaine Foltz, vice president; and Gwendolyn Stilwell, secretary-treasurer.

The FTA movement grew out of the Horace Mann centennial. It was envisioned by Joy Elmer Morgan and was approved and established by the NEA representative assembly in 1937. In its first 10 years it has grown from 14 college chapters with 278 members to 218 chapters with 9154 members. Forty-seven new chapters in colleges and universities were formed during 1947-48.

The chapter functions as a local education association and the student becomes a junior member of the state and national education associations. This entitles the member to receive both the OEA Journal and the NEA Journal plus considerable informational literature pertinent to the teacher or prospective teacher.

Dr. Louis Kaplan, director of teacher training at OCE, is faculty sponsor of the prospective chapter. Dr. George S. Martin, head of the education department at Willamette university, is the state FTA co-ordinator and acts in an advisory capacity to chapters in the state.
