Removal of Rent Control Here Recommended by Gov.

Governor Douglas McKay Friday afternoon gave his approval to the recommendation of the Salem city council that rent controls be removed in Salem.

The governor's recommendation now goes to the national housing expediter, and if he approves he will also remove controls in the entire rent control area, covering most of Marion county and West Salem in Polk county.

In most cases the national expediter, Tighe E. Woods, has followed the recommendations of governors where local option has been used as in Salem.

Decontrol in Salem was petitioned for by the Salem Realty board and by the Salem chapter of the Home and Property Owners association. It was fought by organized labor, numerous tenants of rental units, and by the Progressive party.

The city council, when it first voted on the resolution, defeated it. At the next meeting it was reconsidered and adopted.

Governor McKay said recently that he thought he should be governed in rent control cases by the opinion of the administration of the cities involved. He said his office received very little mail concerning Salem's rental situation. In all his office had 20 letters, 11 favoring decontrol and nine asking for continuance of control.

Sand and Gravel Dispute Ends

On a wage basis reported to be satisfactory to both employers and employees the wage dispute that has kept four sand and gravel plants idle here for six weeks was settled Friday.

The announcement was made after a meeting of employer representatives and representatives of the Local 324 of the Teamsters union.

The terms are a pay increase of 5 cents an hour retroactive to January 1 last, an additional 7½ cents effective as of August 1, and an additional 2½ cents to start next January 1 and continue through 1950.

The new contract is the same as one recently approved in Albany and Corvallis concerns signing with the teamsters, and now to resume operations, were Walling Sand & Gravel company, and River Bend, Commercial and Salem Sand & Gravel company, and Builders Supply of Corvallis. Most of the sand and gravel plants that have been idle will resume work Tuesday.

The dispute started June 28.

Chest Chooses H. C. Johnson

H. C. Johnson of Eugene was temporarily chosen Friday to serve as executive director of the Oregon Chest to succeed the late Irl S. McSherry.

The selection was made at a meeting of the executive committee held here. As a special committee on personnel appointments until the next annual meeting President Loyal Warner, Charles A. Sprague and Jesse Gard were appointed.

President Warner said that Johnson had been an active state worker for the Chest, and knew its operation thoroughly, but was not interested in serving as its executive director on a permanent basis.

The state office of the Chest will remain in Salem. Johnson, now living in Eugene, formerly lived in Corvallis where he was manager for the Standard Oil company. During the war he was coordinator of cities in the Camp Adair area, and later was public relations representative for the Mountain States Power company. He was chairman of the Linn county Community Chest for a year.

Judy Garland, Rested, Ready To Get Back Into Harness

By PATRICIA CLARY
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 6 (UP)—A fat and sunburned Judy Garland bounced back to movietown today ready to start fresh without the tantrums that lost her two pictures and her paycheck.

"I feel better than I have in 10 years," the pug-nosed movie queen said after two months rest and medical treatment. "I'm really ready to start rolling again."

She has a date Monday to tell that to Louis B. Mayer, who tossed her out of "Annie Get Your Gun" when she stormed off the set in a huff.

There'll be no more of that with the new Miss G. "She had been pretty run down," said her manager, Carleton Alop. "But she's in fine health now with quiet nerves."

The big-eyed star packed herself off to a Boston hospital for a rest and checkup. Then she, Alop, and his wife Sylvia Sidney vacationed on Cape Cod. It was her first vacation in years.

"I learned to sleep all over again," she said, "without sleeping pills."

After a month here, she will have another two-week check-up. Then in October, she hopes, Mayer will let her start a musical, "Summer Stock."

"The first thing they'll tell her is to get that weight off," Alop grumbled. "I think it looks good, and it's good for her."

Judy's marital prospects are looking up now, too. She announced four months ago she was divorcing director Vincente Minnelli, but friends think now they may reconcile.

"Vincente is the best friend," she admitted, "that I have in this world."

States Parley to Be Held Oct. 3-4-5

Representatives of 11 western states will meet in Portland October 3, 4 and 5 at the Multnomah hotel to discuss mutual problems.

The meeting was arranged at a conference held in Salem on Thursday afternoon between Stuard Wilson, western representative of the Council of State Governments, George Flagg, chairman of the Oregon Interstate Coordinating committee, State Senator Carl Engdahl and State Representative W. W. Chadwick.

The meeting is one of a series held at various intervals in the various cities of the western states. Governor Douglas McKay will open the meeting, it was stated.

Cover Bottlecaps For Milkmen

Milk distributors after September 1 will have to use bottle caps which cover the pouring lip of the bottle, the state department of agriculture warned today.

The department adopted the regulation last September 1, but it gave the distributors a year to change over.

Another regulation effective September 1 will require trucks hauling milk for bottling to be completely enclosed. This doesn't apply to producers who haul their own milk.

Producers hauling their own milk will have to have their cans protected from dust and direct rays of the sun.
