Shoplifting

Mrs. White said cases coming to her attention are all underprivileged youngsters, and that new ones are constantly coming on.

That doesn't hold for the adults. Well-known names are one of the problems in dealing with shoplifters.

No fault was found with the police. Reluctance of the merchants to prosecute was admitted when Chief Warren questioned the merchants closely as to what their procedure is when they catch anyone in the act.

"It does no good to go to court if the complaining witness won't testify," the chief told them. He offered full cooperation.

Reasons for the reluctance to prosecute are various. Sometimes it is the technical angles of the law that make successful prosecution doubtful. Sometimes it is the prominence of the offenders. And sometimes it is reluctance to crack down on juveniles regardless of their station in life, for fear that the punishment may do the youngsters more harm than good.

Juvenile Officer McRae told the merchants it did no good for them to "take a boy or a girl upstairs and give them a good talking, unless you also inform the police so we can let them know what is ahead if they are caught again. That means they are going to be locked up in the juvenile ward, and they don't like that."

McRae nabbed five boy shoplifters Saturday.

Minimum Wage

The debate was expected to rage most, if not all of the week. The situation was very similar to that at the beginning of the Taft-Hartley debate in the house, with one exception. In this case, the democratic leadership's compromise was before the house at the beginning of the struggle.

In the Taft-Hartley debate it came out at the last minute, and was beaten. The house then went on and sent the whole controversy back to the labor committee, where it rests with no hope of getting out until next year.

A minimum wage bill was the first administration labor measure to reach Capitol Hill after last January. This bill would have raised the minimum from 40 cents to 75 and eventually $1, and brought millions of new workers in under the wage-hour act.

Bowe Elected To Head Legion

American Legion bunting and banners have been taken down from Salem's streets and buildings for another 10 years. The 31st annual state Legion convention ended here Saturday and the Legionnaires won't bring their convention to Salem again until 1959.

Sam M. Bowe of Grants Pass, who had served for one year as department vice-commander, was elected commander Saturday afternoon without opposition.

The most closely contested election was in the race for national committeemen, finally won by Dave Blakeman after three ballots. He defeated Herschel R. Taylor of Eugene and B. E. (Kelly) Owens of Salem. Owens is outgoing commander.

Delegates also voted to not support a bill to raise national Legion membership fees 25 cents per member per annum.

The money is needed for aid of disabled persons, but delegates to the state convention said they would vigorously oppose the measure until the "organization back east" underwent a change in leaders.

This no doubt came as a result of remarks made by Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., Portland banker, Thursday. Belgrano exposed the "high level racketeering" in the national Legion organization, claiming that funds are being squandered.

Clyde R. Dickey, Portland druggist, was elected to the vice commander position. Mrs. W. W. Graham of Corvallis was named president of the state auxiliary.

Destruction

He said tents were needed urgently to shelter the 227,000 living or wandering in the hills. The government is also trying to feed the refugees, he said.

The government has organized an airlift to rush food and supplies to the earthquake area some 70 miles south of Quito.

Planes of every type and description took off at the rate of one every 10 minutes for the flight to Ambato, thriving industrial and farming city of 20,000 that was completely destroyed by Friday's series of quakes.

President Galo Plaza reported to the nation that the six cities of Ambato, Guano, Pello, Pila, Patate and Salcedo were completely destroyed.

The death toll, he said in a radio broadcast after spending 40 hours in the disaster area, had reached 5,000 and there were an estimated 20,000 injured.

The town of Pello, he said, was completely obliterated. "Of 3,500 inhabitants, only 300 were left," he told the nation in an appeal for contributions to the Quito blood bank for earthquake victims.

No Survivors Found
A farmer from Pello, who arrived in Quito carrying his injured daughter in his arms, said only 80 persons remained in Pello. All others were killed or fled to the countryside, he said.

Rescue workers who reached the town of Guano, near Ambato in the quake area, could not find a single survivor from among the 6,000 inhabitants. All had been killed or fled, they said.

Earthquake damage spread across an area of 4,000 square miles with a population of 100,000. Seventy per cent of all houses in the area were destroyed, rescue workers reported.

Airlift planes on their return journey from Ambato brought injured victims for treatment in Quito's hospitals. Government and private planes both flew the airlift.

Americans Cooperate
Pan American Grave Airways planes joined the airlift and the president, A. B. Shea, said the full facilities of the airline had been placed at the disposal of the Ecuadorian government.

It was understood that the American Caribbean air command has standing orders to help in such emergencies.

Some small tremors continued yesterday, but of less intensity than the series of 15 shocks that levelled the area Friday. Several buildings in Ambato, weakened by Friday's shocks, collapsed when the new tremors hit them yesterday.

Silverton—The third annual western horse show was held before 3000 persons Saturday night and in spite of rain. More than 150 horses and riders took part with a feature non-competitive drills by the Oregon Mounted Posse and Silverton Saddle club.

A special attraction was the "race" between Charles Vigland, Silverton high school, and a horse ridden by "Bud" Stoltenberg of the Silverton club. The youth won.

The proceeds of the show, sponsored by the Rotary club, assisted by the Silverton Saddle club, will be used by school district No. 4 in improving McGinnis field.

Officials were Roy Simmons, Judge and Cecil Edwards, announcer, both of Salem. Clowns were Earl Spencer and Guss Hera, both of Silverton.
