The New New Look!

About the Fall Fashions

By ED CREAGH

New York, Aug. 9 (AP)—Park your coats on that hitching post, rents, and let's amble down Fifth Avenue while the women folks are finishing their marshmallow sundaes.

The big stores with the chromium-plated floorwalkers broke out a few million dollars' worth of female fall finery over the week-end, and you might as well see what you're going to get nicked for.

Pay no mind to all that fancy advertising. Here's what it boils down to:

The French New New look is battling it out for the national fashion title with the American back-to-the-1920's look.

You should worry which one wins. Either way, it's going to cost you.

This window here—that bunch of black fluffy stuff on the mannequin with her nose in the air: That's the New New look.

How does it differ from the old new look?

Well, the hem hangs higher. Thirteen and a half inches from the floor. Remember that! You might be asked about it on a giveaway program.

Also, the New New look has something called a floating panel, not to be confused with floating power. The floating panel is a kind of misplaced bib. It hangs down from the waist, apron-wise.

Now then, in the next block, the new old look.

Gad, what memories it brings back—Cal Coolidge, the Charleston, Clara Bow, prohibition.

The tight, or hobble, skirt is back. Short, too—way up what we used to call the limb. And get that waistline, half-way down the hip. To say nothing of the baggy coat, John Held, Jr., style.

Let's face it, men—the oatmeal box figure may be on its way back.
