Maragon Ousted By Sen. Murray

Washington, Aug. 11 (AP)—John Maragon, one of the figures in the senate's investigation of five percenters, was ushered out of the senate lobby today on demand of Senator Murray (D-Mont.).

Maragon, dapper man-about-town who once held a White House pass, approached Murray and offered to shake hands.

"I don't want to shake your hand," Murray said in a loud voice.

"I haven't had any dealings with you. What are you doing here?"

Turning to doorkeepers nearby, Murray said:

"Throw him out."
Harold Norcross, a doorkeeper, took Maragon by the arm and escorted him to the doorway.

Under the senate's rules, only newsmen, senators and their employees are permitted in the lobbies.
