

BETWEEN SESSIONS

13 Interim Boards Probe for Better State Government

By JAMES D. OLSON

Thirteen legislative interim committees, authorized by the 1949 legislature, have been organized to study various state activities. A total of $59,000 was appropriated to cover the expenses of the committees, although the members receive no compensation. One of the most important of the interim committees, known as the "little Hoover committee" will investigate administration of the state government with a view of elimination of duplication and obtaining a higher degree of efficiency in the conduct of state affairs.

This committee will also study the feasibility of revising and rewriting the constitution of the state, and if advisable, propose a time when a constitutional convention should be held for that purpose.

The committee is authorized to expend not more than $10,000 for expenses. Members include Senators Angus Gibson, Junction City and Philip S. Hitchcock, Klamath Falls and Representatives Paul E. Geddes, Roseburg, Charles K. McCulloch, Baker and Rudie Wilhelm, Jr., of Portland. Speaker Frank J. Van Dyke and President of the senate William E. Walsh are ex-officio members.

Inasmuch as taxation and probable need of some new sources of state revenue will be a major problem in the 1951 legislature, the work of the interim committee on taxation is of utmost importance.

missioners but would make its own study and report to the 1951 legislature. In addition to Senator Belton the committee is composed of Senator Eugene E. Marsh, McMinnville; Representatives Giles French, Moro and John I. Sell, The Dalles and three members, Earl Day, Medford, Mrs. Louise Humphrey, Portland and Kelley Loe, also of Portland, appointed by Gov. McKay.

Streamlining the conduct of the legislature with a view of cutting down the length of session and improving legislative procedures is the task given to a legislative procedure committee.

This committee has been directed to devote particular attention to such questions as printing of bills, journals and session laws, to rules governing debate on the floors of the senate and house, to the number and composition of committees, to the salaries of members and the staff and all related problems and subjects.

In addition to the president of the senate and speaker of the house, the members of this committee include Senators Eugene E. Marsh, McMinnville and Richard L. Neuberger, Portland and Representatives David C. Baum, La Grande, Warren Gill, Lebanon and William B. Morse, Prineville.

A continuation of the study of the state highway system, including state highways, county roads and city streets, as well as the financing of the road program of the state carried on by a committee authorized by the 1947 legislature, is provided in another committee from the 1949 legislature. Many of the members of the old committee have been placed on the present one. The members are Senators Paul L. Patterson, Hillsboro, Elmo E. Smith, Ontario and Jack Bain, Portland, and Representatives Edward A. Geary, Klamath Falls, Max M. Landon, Sweet Home, Ralph T. Moore, Coos Bay, who will again be chairman and Vernon Wilson, Vale.

Two committees to study educational subjects, one to investigate post high school facilities and the other giving its attention to public elementary and secondary schools have been authorized.

Other interim committees will investigate public institutions together with the care, custody and training of inmates; the establishment of a state department of natural resources to bring together under the overall administration the problems of wildlife, water conservation and pollution, forestry, soil conservation, state lands and minerals and of other natural resources of the state; application of public assistance funds; establishment of a state botanical garden; examine laws relating to cruelty to animals; veterans' housing and consolidation of city of Portland with Multnomah county.

Uncle Sam produced 35,062,000,000 board feet of lumber in 1946.

Seaman Gets His Dog Back

Seattle, Aug. 11. (AP)—Seaman Sam Massey has his Alaskan dog back again today.

Massey is the 28-year-old Brooklynite who scaled a roof and a fence to get his half-husky, half-collie pooch out of the city pound early yesterday—only to land in the brig himself.

Massey said he had raised the dog from a pup at Adak, in the Aleutians, and wanted it with him on his 60-day leave.

Ray H. Hinea, director of the pound, said Massey retrieved his pet today by apologizing for his invasion of the pens, paying its board bill and buying a collar and license.

Massey told Hinea there was only one remaining hurdle to his departure for good ol' Brooklyn: he had an appointment with his commanding officer to talk over the whole escapade.

Voice of America Is Jammed Again

New York, Aug. 11. (AP)—The Voice of America reported today that its broadcasts to China have been running into Russian "nuisance" jamming.

VOA officials said the jamming began months before the communists crossed the Yangtze last April. They were sure it came from Russia, possibly Vladivostok, since China does not have the equipment to jam relay points at Honolulu and Manila.

The Soviets have been jamming the Russian language broadcasts of the Voice of America and the British Broadcasting corporation since April.

John Bartnik Passes Away

Mt. Angel, Aug. 11 — John Bartnik, 91, who helped construct the first Catholic church in Woodburn and the Catholic church in the Crooked Finger district, died Wednesday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. John Plas, in the Crooked Finger community.

He was also associated in the construction of the Portland Sacred Heart church and McLaughlin Institute at Oregon City.

Bartnik was born in Germany October 12, 1857, and came to this country when a boy, locating in Wisconsin where he later married Caroline Tanzer. They moved to Portland in 1889 and a year later took up a homestead in the Scotts Mills district where he operated a sawmill until his retirement in 1930. His wife died in 1945.

Surviving are another daughter, Mrs. Teresa Hettwer, of the Crooked Finger district; sister, Mrs. J. E. Dubois, Orchard, Wash., and brothers, Jacob, of Crooked Finger and Charles Bartnik, Genoa, N. Y., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church at 8 o'clock Friday morning with burial at Cavalry cemetery. Recitation of the rosary at the Unger funeral home at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

Huckleberries Coming Up
Portland, Aug. 11. (AP) The Forest Service announced today that bears and people won't have to wait much longer for the Mt. Hood huckleberry crop. Loaded bushes were reported in the Mt. Hood National Forest area with the best picking expected the middle of next week.

None of the forest is closed because of fire hazard.

This is Busick's Marion street personell talking and it seem a bit bombastic. That'l be just our way of telling you that Marion street market isn't going to take a back seat for nobody no time. We may not be the purtiest (dont pay no attention to the spellin) but we sure (still talking about the market not bein the purtiest not us) have the most attractive prices, you'll find any where around these parts. The personel of Busick's Court Street market, have challen (what the heck cant even spell the word) any way theres been some gabbin goin on, that court street market is goin to be the most popular market in town, and thats kinda got our dander up. The prices at marion street have nothing to do with court street prices and if they can give more courteous service (or miss spell more words than we can) well jus you visit marion street market and see for your selfs, how folks act when they get there dander up. oh yes, plenty free parkin too. prices listed here are our own prices and are not necessarily the same as at court street. busick's marion street market has little prices, but a lot of all of fashion trendyness. Open Monday thru Thursday TILL 6:30.
