

Armed Services Arrange for Outstanding Exhibits at Fair

On exhibition at the Oregon State Fair this year will be what is probably the first large exhibit of military equipment arranged through the cooperative efforts of all five branches of the armed forces.

Plans for the exhibit, which is to cover an area of approximately 30,000 square feet, were made Wednesday night at a meeting of the Salem Military Manpower committee and representatives of all branches of the armed forces except the Coast Guard.

Uniforms of the armed forces will be much in evidence in the display with the exhibits from all five of the branches, army, air force, navy, marine corps, and coast guard placed in the same area.

Tents for the exhibit will be furnished by the army, which, at the direction of Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the Sixth Army is also sending an exhibit here and a detachment of 190 enlisted men and 14 officers from Fort Lewis. The detachment will be camped in the northeast section of the grounds.

Ride in Helicopter
The army has promised a helicopter from Fort Lewis, which will daily make two flights and present plans are to give all men enlisting at the fair a free ride in the helicopter.

Both the navy and the army plan an exhibit of their medical services and in addition each will have other exhibits. The navy's, which will emphasize its training program, will occupy three tents in addition to that housing the medical services. The Coast Guard, coming from Tongue Point, will occupy two tents with its exhibit.

Here for the fair will be the Scottish Kilt band from the second division at Fort Lewis, and also invited to be here is the Marine Corps band from the headquarters of the Department of the Pacific in San Francisco.

From Fort Worden, Wash., is coming the band of the army engineers and also to receive an invitation to attend the latter part of the fair is the band from Magigan General hospital.

All branches of the armed services will set up their recruiting booths and there at all times will be chaplains of the three faiths, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish.

Special Events
Special events have been planned by the five branches of the services for Governor's day September 8. Top ranking officers of all branches have been invited to attend as guests of Gov. McKay.

For that day there will be an honor guard of 40 men, eight from each branch of the armed services, and a color guard from all branches. A combined salute is to be given by five guns manned by crews from each branch of the services.

Lt. Col. J. L. Winecoff, inspector-instructor for the Fourth 105 mm Howitzer will be in charge of the honor guard and the combined salute and in charge of the color guard will be Lt. Col. Henry Russell from the Northern Military district. Col. LaMarr Tooze, commander of the 104th infantry division, Oregon army reserve division, will be marshal of the colors for Governor's day.

Coordinator Named
Lt. Col. Henry Russell, officer in charge of infantry affairs, ORC, for the Northern Military district has been appointed military coordinator for the entire exhibit by Gen. Mark Clark and his representative in Salem is to be Capt. Richard Reynolds of the ORC instructor group here. Those from out of town represent

Mighty Joe Young Is Unique in Filmdom

Unique in screen history is "Mighty Joe Young," with its title character a tremendous gorilla whose feats of daring and brilliance defy ordinary standards.

See him toss cowboys and riders around when they try to lasso him; watch him become the pampered darling of cafe society—and thrill to his agony when, tormented and teased beyond endurance, he towers into a giant of unleashed fury.

Thrills such as the dangerous chase between Joe and a group of armed police are equalled only by the heartbreak of watching the mighty animal sacrifice everything to plunge into a blazing orphanage where small children are trapped on the roof.

Starring Terry Moore, Ben Johnson and Robert Armstrong with Frank McHugh, "Mighty Joe Young," is an Arko production for RKO Radio release. Ernest B. Schoedsack directed the presentation by John Ford and Merian C. Cooper.

The picture starts its Salem engagement at the Elsinore theatre Sunday.

Would-Be Gunman Admits Weapon Error

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP)—Walter Spellman, 39, admitted today that he made a mistake when he pointed his finger like a pistol to hold up barkeeper Hyman Horwitz, 55.

"I shoulda used something that was loaded," he said.

Horitz' son, William, 27, saw Spellman drape a handkerchief over his hand and knew he had no gun. He pinned the "gunman" to the floor until police arrived.
