

Trip Needed 12 Days Then, Now Only an Hour

By BEN MAXWELL

When Uncle Johnny Minto and his party ventured up the North Santiam in 1873 in an attempt to rediscover the mountain pass leading to the Wascopam country they were out 12 days. Last Sunday a four-motored, DC-4 United Air Lines Mainliner left McNary field on a courtesy flight at 2:21 p.m., was over Detroit dam 20 minutes later, circled Mt. Jefferson before 3 o'clock and had returned to the Salem airport in something less than an hour and five minutes.

Dust, smoke and shimmering heat reduced visibility to a diffused grey until the big plane reached Mill City flying at an elevation of near 5000 feet. Cropped grain fields looked hot and drab, irrigated patches along streams were green. Passengers confused by direction and elevation looked at towns and villages. Some avowed it was Astoria, others declared it was Stayton, and an old-timer making his first flight allowed it was Seio.

Second foothills, lightly timbered by bare growth and combustible brush, soon gave way to the mountainous region. Here the DC-4 increased its altitude and the valley haze diminished to increase visibility. Far below the North Santiam highway wended its way along the river and eastward up the canyon to the land of the Wascopams.

Detroit dam was approached at an altitude of near 6000 feet. Access roads, clearings and excavations appeared as puny scarifications on the surface of a vast and turbulent terrain. To the northward the forest disappeared and became only a pattern of color engaging the base of Mt. Hood. To the southward, ill-defined in blue haze, were the three rugged and eternal Sisters.

Mt. Jefferson, towering to 10,495 feet and now somewhat denuded of snow, now somewhat denuded of snow, now somewhat denuded of snow.

The smog occurred at the intersection of Fairgrounds road and Madison street. The only eyewitness to the crash was a Salem patrolman riding in a prowl car some 30 feet behind Cannon's jeep.

Injury in Traffic Crash Fatal to Owen Cannon
Owen Cannon, 54, 1153 Hall Street, died at Salem hospital Tuesday from injuries sustained when the jeep he was driving collided with a car driven by Maxene Virginia Green, 430 East Ewald.

The smog occurred at the intersection of Fairgrounds road and Madison street. The only eyewitness to the crash was a Salem patrolman riding in a prowl car some 30 feet behind Cannon's jeep.

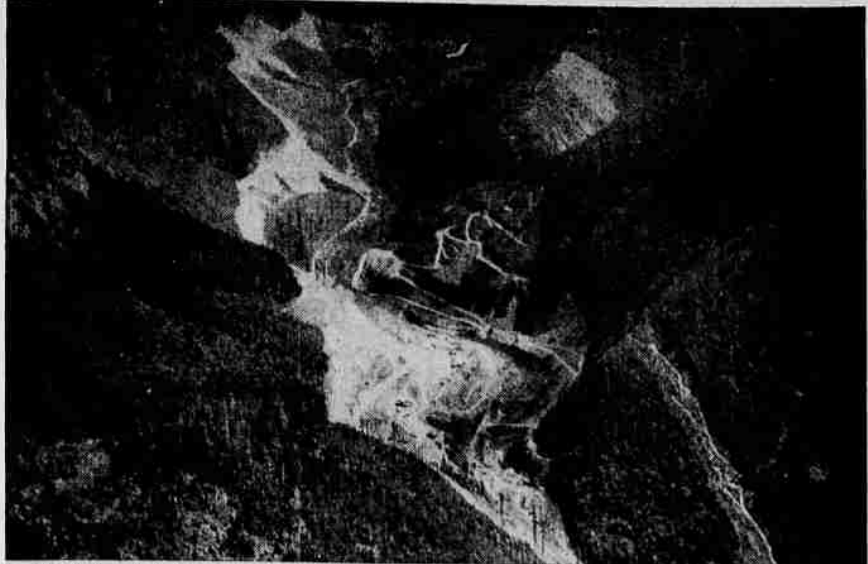

Cannin apparently was driving north on Fairgrounds road. The police report specified that the "Green car suddenly turned into the Cannon car making a head-on collision."

The first aid crew was immediately summoned, and both the man and woman were rushed to Salem General hospital in an unconscious condition. At that time, Cannon's injuries were described as a cut left ear, a possible shoulder fracture and a possible fracture to the base of the skull.

The woman's injuries were listed as a fractured nose, a bump on the forehead and possible rib fractures as well as bruises.

The Salem police blotter listed Green as charged with driving without a license and failing to give the right of way to a motor vehicle.

Hostages—Peter H. Sellers, 18 (top), of Philadelphia, and Warren Oelsner, 20, (bottom) of Oyster Bay, N. Y., are being held as hostages by the Russians in the Soviet zone of Germany. Oelsner's brother, Edward C. Oelsner, Jr., said in New York. He said the state department had informed him that the two students had fallen into Russian hands while on a bicycle tour and that as a condition of their return, the Russians are demanding that the U. S. military government return three Russian army deserters said to have fled to the U. S. zone.

Progress on Elkhorn Road

County Commissioners Ed Rogers and Roy Rice making an inspection trip Monday afternoon report that the road crew rehabilitating the mountain road over the ridge from Gates to Elkhorn have completed the road up the hill from Gates and had the grading about half down the hill from the top of the ridge to the Elkhorn road and will probably finish that job next week with the rocking there still to be done. Shale rock is expected to be available from the Lumker's bridge vicinity for the base.

The commissioners reported that in many places the road is being widened for turnouts and that the job is being well done and expeditiously.

While on their way the officials also looked at the start of work toward laying two new 36-inch tiles at the intersection of market road 22 and 854 a mile north of Shaw which are to be installed in connection with the proposed conservation district improvements. It is hoped to have these tile laid in time for the big conservation meeting at the Bartell place in September when thousands of farmers are expected to be on hand. This is but one of many county road tile changes expected to be effected to work in with drainage plans of the conservation district.

They also examined a condition at Gates where some land owners residing about half a mile west of that town had complained of their property and the county road right-of-way being made an illegal garbage dump. They gathered evidence which they are hoping to present to the district attorney in support of the campaign to prevent such dumping.

Leftover slices of meat may be arranged in a shallow baking dish, covered with gravy and topped with mashed potatoes, then heated thoroughly in a moderate oven. Sprinkle the potatoes with paprika before they are heated and then garnish with parsley sprigs just before the dish goes to the table.

"Nuisance"—Henry F. Grady (above), head of a 1946 U. S. mission to Greece, said in a memorandum to the senate 5% committee that John Maragon made "a nuisance of himself" on the mission and took it upon himself to "investigate" the air transport command without authority.

All flour used for baking cakes, whether it is all-purpose or cake flour, should be sifted before measuring.
