A county crew was sent to make repairs immediately. In the meantime the bridge had been posted as being dangerous for heavy loads.

New Deputy Named — County Clerk Harlan Judd has announced the appointment of William Freese, a young veteran of Stayton, as deputy county clerk to assist Rosemary Howard, circuit court clerk. The inauguration of the new system of juries in both courts makes additional help necessary along with additional work crowding the office. Freese will not only handle work in the courts but also do general office work and keep the court journals up to date.

Bulldozer Damaged — One of the county bulldozers being used on improvement of the mountain road from Gates to the Elk-horn was taken off the work Tuesday when its transmission was torn out by some heavy duty. However, it was stated the work will not be much retarded as the county has another bulldozer on the job.

Constable Named — The county court Wednesday named Joe F. Faulhaber as constable for the Mt. Angel district succeeding Peter J. Burger who recently resigned to become effective September 1. Viewers Named — The county court Wednesday named Leo N. Childs, William Kruger and Joe Bourne, Salem realtors, as a board of viewers to assess damages on the Hillfiker road where a way of necessity is being asked on petition of several of the property owners. This is a dedicated road near the intersection of the 12th street cut-off with 99E. The petition showed that when land was first sold provision was made for a 30-foot dedicated road and deeds for one side of the road, or 15 feet of it, provided for such right-of-way. But, it was stated, when land was sold on the other side no provision was made in the deeds for the other 15 feet. Lately one of the property owners, it is averred, dumped several loads of dirt on the undeveloped portion. Now other property owners are seeking to force a road through on that side.

Shows Road Progress — A check made by County Commissioner Roy Rice shows that out of 66 roads for which oiled road improvements were petitioned at hearings held in 1946 and 1947, 35 of them have either been improved all or in part, for the distances asked. This, too, in spite of the fact no new roads were laid out this year because of the necessity of confining all of the work to repair damages done by freezing last winter.

Pardon Deal

McCarthy named the liquor interests involved in the alleged reports as "Schenley" and "Costello." He said Frankie Costello, reputed New York gambling kingpin; William Hells, horse owner and race track figure, and Phil Kastel are partners in a liquor concern. Yesterday Vaughan had denied any knowledge that any of the democratic campaign contributions he received came from Costello. He said he did get a contribution—he thought it was around $2,000—through Hells.

In the clemency case Vaughan said Attorney William H. Neblett called on him in the interest of Robert Gould of Cincinnati, serving six years in the liquor black market case. Denies Connection

"I don't think that had a thing to do with it, senator," Vaughan testified when McCarthy asked him about a possible connection between the campaign contribution and the parole Gould finally got.

In fact, he said he only "thinks" Gould got a parole about a year later. Shortly before the hearings recessed until tomorrow, McCarthy drew from Vaughan an acknowledgment that he bought a car for a friend, Mrs. Morris Cavannaugh of Spring Green, Wis.

McCarthy said it was an Oldsmobile purchased in 1947 and that it turned up in the black market 10 days later at a price of $3,500.

Vaughan called the black market angle "very much a surprise." After the hearing, Schenley Distillers, Inc., issued this statement: "General Vaughan never made any inquiry for us and was never paid anything by us, nor asked to do anything for us on grain or any other matter."

Russian Pilot

The two officers were taken to the United States last February. In a news conference at Linz after the plane crash here Barsov said he was opposed to the communist ideology although he had been a candidate for party membership. He said all Russian officers must apply for membership or face serious investigation.

Li. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, American high commissioner to Austria, declined to make any statement on the incident.

On army spokesman said today the state department acted with more "haste than judgment" in authorizing Barsov's release.

"There are at least three Americans missing in the Russian zone of Austria and at least two Americans missing in the Russian zone of Germany," he said.

"We did not even try to bargain Barsov's return for the return of our own people," he said. American circles in Vienna speculated on Barsov's probable fate.

It was noted that Russia's latest note to Yugoslavia contained a bitter denunciation of deserters.

American sources said they expected Barsov to be used for propaganda attacks against the United States for a few weeks and then to drop from sight.

Says German Youth Want to Live in U. S.

Dallas, Ore., Aug. 31 (UP) — Joyce Bartell, Dallas high school senior who recently toured western Europe, today believed that the dream of German youth is to live in the land which helped conquer them, America.

Miss Bartell said, "We saw the true picture of the nations poor condition when we lived and ate in their private homes."

"On the whole, German youths are not too optimistic about the future. They have been through so much and lost nearly everything."

"They are interested in American schools and ask many questions about them," Miss Bartell said.

The group with which Miss Bartell toured Europe for two months was led by Walter Fiskus, a minister of Longview, Wash.

Red Cross Camp Center Trains Boys and Girls

By MARIAN LOWRY FISCHER
Ninety-six high school boys and girls are attending the 10-day Junior Red Cross leadership training center at the YMCA camp in the Silver Creek recreation area.

"The course is a very helpful one—and we are having a super time in these beautiful woods" was the sentiment voiced by the group when visited this week by board members from the Marion county chapter of the American Red Cross.

The camp concludes Saturday. The 96 youths come from California, Idaho, Alaska, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia—10 from the latter province, five girls and five boys.

This is the first training center of this type conducted in Oregon. There are 12 staff members chosen by the area office of the American Red Cross to direct the 96 campers, and one observer, with Don Legg, San Francisco, area Junior Red Cross assistant director, in charge of the camp. (Mr. Legg left Salem in the early summer after serving as state relations officer in the Red Cross for several western Oregon counties).

Leadership Basis
Each of the delegates was selected to attend the camp on the basis of leadership and for his enthusiasm and achievement in Junior Red Cross work.

Helen Callaghan is the representative from the Marion county chapter's Junior Red Cross group attending the camp. Of the 96 enrolled at the center, 29 are from various chapters in Oregon.

Junior Red Cross is that program of the American Red Cross which provides opportunity for the school children to work in Red Cross and to train for future leadership in services of the organization. The program is carried on through the schools, grade through high school.

Up at 7 a. m., with breakfast at 7:30, the campers get everything in readiness to begin the day's program at 8:30 a. m. Each morning there are two hours of discussion and work on various phases of Junior Red Cross, and two more hours each afternoon.

The program includes water safety, an hour lecture on first aid, an hour discussion on home nursing, and other interests in the organization. Many at the camp are working both in junior and senior life saving for certification—and the beautiful swimming pool is a popular place at the camp, because there is recreational swimming as well as water safety work.

From 7:45 to 8:15 o'clock each evening there is another discussion period for various Red Cross topics.

Guest Speakers Come
It is for these evening discussions that outside speakers are invited to the camp. One evening was given over to the blood program, another to chapter activities in the American Red Cross, last evening to services offered by both the adult and Junior Red Cross for the armed forces, while this evening's discussion will present Jack Hayes, state deputy fire marshal, in a talk on governmental responsibility in times of disaster and the Red Cross part in such times, and Thursday evening's program will present Willard Bear of the state department of education who is to discuss Junior Red Cross and the educational system. Preventing forest fires and accident prevention are other topics that have been stressed.

Following these evening discussions the youngsters have a short program of their own for a little fun before retiring for the night — everybody in his own bunk by 9:45 p. m.

For the evening program at the visitation by Marion county Red Cross officials, Miss Susan Faherty, chapter manager, and Charles H. Huggins, chapter chairman, were speakers. Miss Faherty briefly discussed the history of the American Red Cross and outlined the various services it offers as well as the organizational set-up through the individual chapters.

Good Neighbors
"Through your Junior Red Cross you can learn to share in civic responsibility and you have the chance to serve others and your community. The basic concept of the Red Cross is to help good neighbors," Miss Faherty told the group.

Mr. Huggins discussed the many services the Junior Red Cross carries on—assistance to the armed forces and veterans and the veterans' hospitals, as well as the major program of educational boxes sent to children of other lands, and the many little tasks through which Junior Red Cross members can do their bit within their communities. He commended them for the many achievements of the Junior group.

In one of the camp buildings is an interesting display of work done by Junior Red Cross in other sections, featuring articles also from Alaska, Japan, Faherty, chapter manager, and the Philippines and other lands.
