

State Fair Events Soon In Spotlight

Salemites are busy this week getting all set for the annual State Fair opening next Monday. As usual, many visitors will be guests at homes in the capital.

In addition to all the regular fair exhibits and events, special interest as always centers on the races and the nightly horse show.

For the horse show, those reserving boxes include: L. A. Ballmer, Carl Hogg, Mike Paynter, Mrs. W. H. Chapman of Eugene, Dr. E. S. Fortner, Dr. J. C. Gray of Albany, Gerald Frank of Portland, Tom Allen, Ben Kressey, Van Wiedner, Bert Corby of Seattle, Holly Jackson, Mrs. Jack Eyerly, Miss Georgia Dale of Eugene.

Also of interest in connection with the horse show is report that United States Senator Wayne L. Morse will be here to enter one of his horses in the nightly show.

For Miss Bodeen

Silverton—Among the many social affairs in compliment to Miss Verna Bodeen, fiancée of Byron Fry, was the Sunday afternoon dessert luncheon and presentation of a group gift to the bride-elect, with Miss Gale Jackson and Miss Dorothea Scarth co-hostesses at the home of Miss Jackson's parents, the Edmond Jacksons of Geiser addition.

Miss Bodeen recently moved to Yamhill from the Silverton Hills home with her family. The luncheon table was centered with a tiny floral umbrella covered with summer chrysanthemums. Each guest was given a place card of an imitation small rolling pin in white in which she found her fortune told. During the afternoon contest games were enjoyed and each guest wrote "Advice to the Bride," making up a booklet.

Seated at the table were the complimented guest, Miss Bodeen, Mrs. A. Sacher, Miss Alice Miller, Miss Sylvia Lucht of Mt. Angel, Mrs. Don Miller and the hostesses, Miss Jackson and Miss Scarth.

Having a part in the gift was Miss Edythe Holland who was unable to attend.

SALEM REBEKAH lodge No. 1 was entertained Monday evening by the F. L. club whose members gave a program of music and fun. The F. L. club will meet at the home of Mrs. Colene Lonsberry, 1577 Court street on Thursday at 8 p.m.

The Rebekah reception committee for September will be Mrs. Margaret Sisk, Mrs. Carl Staats, Mrs. Merlin Ready, Mrs. LaVer Applegate, Miss Wilda Blagmund, Mrs. Marguerite Simon.

Mrs. William Gardner and her committee served refreshments in the dining room Monday.

Goes to Hillsboro

Miss Joyce Reeves has left for Hillsboro where she has accepted a position as teacher of physical education in the high school. Miss Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay E. Reeves, was graduated in June from Willamette university. This week she has been attending a workshop at the Hillsboro schools, the school term to open next Tuesday.

Miss Reeves was in Portland Friday to attend the wedding of a Chi Omega sorority sister, Miss Helen Blevins, and John Martin, and was in Camas, Saturday to attend the wedding of another sorority sister, Miss Marjorie Andersen, who was married to Bruce Barker.

Mrs. Vern W. Miller entertained last evening at the American Legion club at an informal dinner. Dr. Needham has been on the staff since last fall and Dr. King will enter September 1. He is a brother of Dr. A. Terrance King who is with the clinic.

At the dinner places were marked for Dr. J. Alan King, Dr. Winfield Needham, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Power, Dr. and Mrs. Wolcott E. Buren, Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Lancelfield, Dr. and Mrs. A. Terrance King, Dr. and Mrs. Vern W. Miller.

PERMA STARCH

AN OPEN LETTER OF WARNING

So that you will not be "confused" into buying any product attempting to imitate the "ORIGINAL" PERMA STARCH, we are writing you this note of WARNING. You may have read the many wonderful feature stories about PERMA STARCH in "Life", "Good Housekeeping", "House and Garden", "Parade", and dozens of other leading publications. REMEMBER—the product which earned, deserved, and got this unprecedented publicity is PERMA STARCH, whose patents and research in world famous laboratories date way back to 1934.

Since all this remarkable publicity appeared on PERMA STARCH some quickly formed products, with undetermined research background, have jumped into this market, trying to imitate PERMA STARCH. Some of these products have names very similar to PERMA STARCH and some have even gone so far as to add water, greatly reducing the percentage of active ingredients, but making their product "seem" more economical.

There is only ONE REAL PERMA STARCH—highly concentrated into an easy-to-carry pint—carefully perfected through 15 years of research in leading universities and laboratories. No other product has PERMA STARCH ingredient materials even though they may claim to have or try to imitate.

Insist on genuine PERMA STARCH in the distinctive barber-pole striped bottle at your favorite grocery store.

Salem Man Wed in Bend

Married Saturday morning, August 21, at a ceremony in the First Methodist church at Bend was Miss Lola Arlene Zastera, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Zastera of that city, and Robert Bowen Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett of Salem.

The service was read at 10 o'clock by the Rev. D. L. Penhollow of Redmond, the double-ring ceremony being used. The church was decorated with baskets of pastel phlox and baby breath, and at the altar were pink, white and red gladioluses.

James Bennett of Hagerman, Idaho, cousin of the bridegroom, was soloist at the wedding and Joe Brazie of Salem was at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory slipper satin, designed with sweetheart neckline, long tight-fitting sleeves and full train. The fingertip veil was arranged from a sweetheart tilara detailed with seed pearls. The bride carried a white bouquet with an orchid and shower of forget-me-nots.

Mrs. Melva Jo Brabham was her sister's honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Ellen Montague of Newberg and Mrs. Richard Gatke of Klamath Falls. All the attendants wore identical dresses, made with fitted bodices, ruffled shoulder lines and full skirts. Mrs. Brabham being in blue, the bridesmaids in pink taffeta. They all carried nosegays of sweet peas and wore the same flowers in their hair.

Susan Brabham, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a blue-length frock of blue taffeta and carried a tiny basket of flowers.

The candlelighters were Misses Corlis and Loretha Huel, aunts of the bride. They wore aqua gowns, styled similarly to the dresses of the bride's attendants.

Frank M. Bennett, Portland, attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Richard Bennett and Donald Bennett, brothers of the bridegroom, Richard Mase of Salem and Leonard Zastera, brother of the bride.

A garden reception at the Zastera home followed the service.

Besides the bridegroom's parents and those in the wedding party, others from Salem attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. James Purdy and Mrs. J. Edgar Purdy.

For traveling the bride wore a gray suit with pink and dark gray accessories and corsage of orchids.

Following a trip to Rainier National park the couple are at home in Salem at 468 North
