

SCHOOL DISTRICT No 24 C J

Salem Elementary Public School Pupils will report Monday morning to the buildings which are outlined in the above diagram. After registration has been completed it may be necessary to make changes in some instances.

Most Schools Open Monday Building Delays at Two

By FRED ZIMMERMAN
The school bell no longer is used as a signal to the youth of the city that it is time to resume operations "Book," but nevertheless some six or seven thousand young folk know full well that vacation will be over next Monday morning.
Failure of the contractors to complete their work in the construction of two new grade buildings and the remodeling and enlarging of two others has caused some confusion among pupils and parents but this is expected to be eliminated in due course.
Then Friday mornings heavy rain slowed registration in the elementary schools to the point that Superintendent Frank B. Bennett has had difficulty in determining with any degree of accuracy, just what the enrollment will be. However, those who failed to register are expected to perform this duty Monday morning.
An estimated 3750 are expected to enroll in the elementary division, 1700 at senior high and 1850 in the three junior highs.
With the exception of Parrish junior high, Four Corners and Englewood, regular class work will begin in all schools Monday morning. In the case of the three exceptions a delay of at least a week will be in effect.
Pupils who will attend the new Washington school in the Capitola district will meet there not later than 8:45 Monday morning for bus transportation to the old Washington school where classes will be held during the week. They will be returned to Capitola in the afternoon.
The school property has been

Tax Agents Scan Realty Records

Two agents of the federal bureau of internal revenue have moved into the office of County Recorder Herman Lanke and have started scanning the records of all real estate transactions made in the county over the past several years and are making notations on them.

Exhibitors at State Fair Will Miss Mrs. Wilson Next Year

By C. K. LOGAN
The 85th Oregon State Fair in 1950 will not seem quite the same to numerous exhibitors and concessionaires for Mrs. Ella Schultz Wilson will not be on the grounds.
Identified with active management of the fair for 25 years since 1915, she announced Friday that this would be her last year and that on January 1 she would retire.

Mrs. Wilson has served in many capacities and for several years was the only woman manager of a state fair or major exposition in the United States.
Few persons, either man or woman, have had all details in connection with staging a fair so well in hand at all times, particularly those last-minute conflicts which occasionally arise on the grounds. Not only has she shown managerial ability but often her diplomatic tactics would shame the personnel of the state department.

Mrs. Wilson's earliest experience came in 1905 and 1906 when she served for three months each year with F. W. Durham, hop grower in whose office she was then employed, when he took time off to direct the fair.

She became a regular secretary to the manager under W. Al Jones in 1915 and to A. H. Lea in 1916. He has been manager of the Multnomah county fair at Gresham for many years.

In 1922 Mrs. Wilson became manager and held this position under the old state fair board until the legislature of 1931 placed the annual affair under the direction of the state department of agriculture. She continued in that capacity for two years and since then has served as secretary to the manager.

Mrs. Wilson was born in Iowa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schultz, and came to Oregon with her parents when she was five years old. Her first employment was as secretary in the law office of the late Charles L. and John McNary.

Mrs. Wilson is the mother of three children, Richard Wilson, Portland; Julius Wilson, New York and Mrs. A. W. (Jeanne) Thompson, Roseburg.

Mrs. Wilson has not made plans for the future and Leo Spitzbart, manager of the fair, no arrangements for her successor. As a token of their appreciation in the past, long-time exhibitors and concessionaires presented a substantial cash gift to Mrs. Wilson. She will use this when the transcription of records is complete they will be used to check on income tax returns during the period covered to see if the profits if any were duly recorded in the returns and the tax paid.

The state has had an agent off and on for several months watching the real estate transactions and making a record of them for the state tax commission.
It is further presumed in both the case of the state and federal government if there has been any failure to make adequate tax returns on such sales the seller will hear about it through official channels in due course.

There is no need for any unemployed dog to wander around for if he has ability and the right size he can get into the act handled for 37 years by C. J. Tryon, bachelor of science of engineering from the University of Michigan. If he successfully passes a "screen" test he (or she) may become a star.
People land in unusual occupations in the most unorthodox manner and the career of Tryon well illustrates this.

Dogs were further from his mind while he was mining in Arizona, but he had a poodle named Hector and as a consequence he has been a showman since Hector was a pup.
Tryon uses dogs of any breed and does not inquire into their ancestry. The only qualification is that the dog "be smart" and of small size. Small animals have more stage-appeal than larger ones, he has found. Life expectancy of one of his dogs is 10 or 11 years.

So, any small dog who thinks he is smart and can prove it, has a job if he contacts Tryon at the fair grounds where he has been presenting his canine actors during the week.
Leo Spitzbart had one disgruntled customer who was enjoying the grounds in spite of the heavy rainfall Friday morning. He was given a private escort to the administration building. "If this is the way you treat me, I won't ever come back to the fair", he muttered. He remained at headquarters until the arrival of an attendant from the state hospital who escorted him "home" in a private automobile.
Living in Portland is no drawback when it comes to knowing chickens. Three Portland youngsters won first place in the annual 4-H club poultry judging contest. Members of the winning team were Horace Cooke, David Parrish and Bob Armstrong. Tied for high individual honors were Bruce Johnston, Linn county and Sharon Versteegan, Jackson county, member of the second place team. Each winner counted 525 points out of a 600 possible. Seven teams competed.
