Pairings Announced for First Round Salem Golf

By FRED ZIMMERMAN, Capital Journal Sports Editor

One must hand it to Tex Salkeld, the genial promoter of boxing, he keeps on plugging away regardless of what happens at the gate. Failure to attract anything like worthwhile audiences around the armory arena can be charged against lack of talent. This is particularly true as it applies to boxers who can really put on a worthwhile contest. Then, too, there is no doubt but cipal attraction. Marshall's record includes a knockout over Ezzard Charles, present heavyweight champ, back in 1943 and a win over Jake Lamotta, middleweight king.

It's a bit hard to visualize, nevertheless football is right

It's a hit hard to visualize, nevertheless football is right upon us with a number of clubs opening competition next Saturday. First to shove off for the 1949 grid wars in these parts are the Oregon Webfoots and the OSC Beavers. Due to the distance involved the Beavers will doubtless be the first to get under way. Coach Kip Taylor and his crew have an engagement with the UCLA Bruins in Los Angeles the night of Sept. 16. The same night Coach Jim Aiken will send his Oregonians against St. Mary's in Kezar stadium, hard by Golden Gate park, San Francisco. Then, Chester Stackhouse, most recent arrival as head man at Willamette, will depart for Moscow where the University of Idaho Vandals await. Quite an initiation for Coach Stackhouse.

From what we have been able to glean here and there, Chester Stackhouse has made an excellent impression on the young men whom he will direct this fall. Even those die-hards who said they wouldn't return to the Willamette campus unless this man or that one was hired and who did come back with some-man of that one was hired and who did come back with some-thing of a chip on their shoulders, have gone enthusiastically to work after a brief "look-see." There is more hustle and spirit on old Sweetland field than we have seen in a number of years. Possessed with unusual ability to get things organized and then carry through, the former University of Michigan athlete has sold himself, lock, stock and barrel, not only to the gridmen but also to others who bave had a chance to greet him.

Willamette gymnasium was not in bad shape when the new man arrived but he went to work correcting the things that he deemed essential, and as a result the place is much more workable and liveable. Old equipment was dug out and articles that were found useless went into the junk heap.

"Profanity Is Not a Sign of Intelligence," a statement ap-pearing over the doorway leading into the equipment room, reflects the mental attitude of the new head man. We have not gained the impression that Coach Stackhouse is a saint or one who would spend most of his time preaching morals or one who would spend most of his time preaching morals but we have an idea that he is all in favor of turning out future coaches, professional and business men who have a few ideals above the gutter level. The fact that two or three members of last year's squad had fully made up their minds to go elsewhere this fall and then showed up here.

The future of professional baseball in Salem may depend upon what happens during Tuesday night's conference slated for the Chamber of Commerce. Few persons indicated in the sport who have expressed an opinion to this writer, believe the Waters park and the Salem franchise is worth the $95,000 asked by the Portland management. There is a feeling that Business Manager Bill Mulligan will accept a smaller amount if the counter proposal is backed up with something substantial in a financial way. Regardless of what the property is worth under a fair appraisal we do not believe it could be replaced at the figure designated by the Beaver interests if one had to start from scratch. If Salem wants to invest in baseball now is the time to act. However, we have a feeling that if the present deal doesn't go through the Beavers will field a team here next spring. That is providing the Western International league isn't involved in an entire pro-

Then, too, there is no doubt but that the amusement dollar is being spread thinner and thinner as the man who pays the bill becomes a bit more choosey as to just what entertainments he will attend. This is reflected in the comparatively small number of men who qualified for the Salem Golf club championship. In recent years this event has not gone below 100. at the right time this season.

The Indians particiularly have managed to get their blows for the distance when the bases aren't well populated and situations like that can turn a lot of games that might have been 5 to 2 victories into 2 to 1 defeats. That's the difference begets its homers with nobody on via homers, the Cleveland club with 162 on a total of 105 homers has one of the lowest percentages in the major leagues. What's more, the club is off considerably in total protween a homer with bases emp-ty and a homer with the bases it same though with 155 round trip blows last season. The Braves aren't down on total homers - in fact, they are almost certain to pass last year's high of 95 since they have 92 to date, but here again the matter of hitting them at the right time is involved. Thus far the Braves have gotten a total of 142 runs batted in with their 92 homers, 55 of which have come with nobody on base. For the first time in major
