School Merger Now in Effect

Merger of the Salem and Hayesville school districts voted on in the two areas Monday was declared in effect as of Wednesday morning at a meeting of the district boundary board which canvassed the votes and took the official consolidation action.

Object of the quick maneuver was to make Parrish school facilities available to the seventh and eighth grade pupils next Monday when Parrish opens its doors. Mrs. Agnes C. Booth, county superintendent, said that this will transfer about 30 pupils from the Hayesville to the city school leaving all the facilities at Hayesville available to pupils from the lower grades. There will be about 100 of these, she estimated.

The unofficial election return was found to be accurate, Hayesville voting 102 to 17 in favor of the consolidation and Salem 75 to 7 with one other vote void.

Development

The bill, S2180, to which Warne referred is by Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.). It calls for authorization of the army engineer-reclamation bureau program.

Copies of the Warne letter, dated two weeks ago, were sent to Magnuson and Senator Cain (R-Wash.). The latter made it public.

Cain had planned to ask the public works commission today to add the $1,000,000,000 Columbia basin program to the house-passed $1,318,546,175 water projects bill but was unable to do so.

Case Talks to Rotary on CVA

That the Columbia Valley Authority as provided for under a bill now before congress would constitute one of the largest corporations in the country was the flat assertion of Robert Armond Case as he spoke on the subject Wednesday noon before the Salem Rotary club.

Case declared that the three men who would operate the corporation would be appointed by the president and would be accountable to nobody else. No one in the northwest would have any say as to the operation of the proposed CVA. And because the measure states that the three men "must believe in the wisdom and feasibility" of the act, representatives of a vast majority of the organizations and newspapers in the area vitally involved would be automatically eliminated.

Case stated that the blanketing of the United States with similar power authorities and would mean that private power concerns would not be able to function.

The speaker urged members of his audience to study the bill and draw their own conclusions as to its implications.

Last Car of Oil For 1949 Program

The county court Wednesday ordered what it expects will be its last carload of road oil for its 1949 program which brings the total up to 75 cars for the season, what would be considered an extra long freight train made up entirely of oil cars if they were brought into the county in one train.

County Commissioner Rice says the court expects to taper off its program next week with the paving of the extension of 25th street into the airport, a cooperative city and county job. The city has already prepared the grade and it is being done jointly as part of the road lies in the city and part in the county.

N. W. States

Two members of the Idaho public utilities commission agreed at the meeting to re-enter into a reciprocal agreement on commercial vehicles with Oregon on January 1, 1950. This agreement was cancelled by Idaho in June, 1948, on the charge that Idaho commercial vehicle owners were being penalized in Oregon by the then ton-mile tax. This tax has been removed in the state and the Idaho commission is willing to renew its relationship with Oregon again.

No Longer 3 Licenses
Under the proposed tri-state agreement, which doubtless will be adopted as soon as it can be drawn up in proper form, truckers will no longer be required to purchase plates in the three states. Operators will be permitted to operate with licenses from the state in which headquarters are maintained.

California is considering joining the agreement and at a meeting scheduled on September 20 the states of Montana, Utah, Wyoming and Arizona will consider the proposal.

$350 Fines for Poachers
Stayton, Sept. 14 — Fines for violations of game laws recorded in Stayton justice court recently reached a total of $350 Wednesday when Leo Mark Calahan was assessed $150 and costs for spotlighting deer. In other recent cases, George, Jethro and Frank Sprague were fined for illegal possession of venison. George was fined $150 and costs while the other Spragues were fined $25 and costs.

Murray Calls

A spokesman for the CIO United Steelworkers said that Union President Philip Murray's statement he is ready to resume negotiations for a contract based on the board's report meant that he will strike any companies which fail to agree to pay all insurance and pension costs.

At least two company officials said workers ought to share the costs of such programs.

New Students Hear Dr. Smith

Some 300 freshmen and other students new to Willamette university campus assembled in Waller hall Wednesday morning to hear an address of welcome by President G. Herbert Smith. The assembly was a feature of a week of orientation and registration for members of the class of '53.

She students also heard from Dr. Raymond A. Withey, Jr., dean of students and from Harold Jory, registrar. An orientation assembly early in the afternoon for all new students was highlighted by talks by department heads, including Dr. Charles Paeth, director of admission; Dr. Withey; Dr. George Martin, general supervisor; Mrs. Regina L. Ewald, dean of women; Dr. Robert Gregg, dean of the college of liberal arts; Dean Melvin Giest of the college of music; Dr. Robert Fenix, financial vice president; Dr. Ralph Purvine, university physician, and Mrs. Alice Nelson, panel-nellect advisor president of the student body.

Thursday's program will include separate assemblies for men and women, English placement examinations and various group conferences.

Roads Protested

Now, the operators contend, they are being given the run-around with the date for the county's share of the work being pushed back farther and farther. First set-back of the project was unavoidable and due to the gravel strike.

On the east side of the field the navy, after taking over the hangar there from a Naval Air Facility, used a city grader and reworked the entire road, draining the water from the side of which the hangar is located. A drainage ditch was dug on the other side and a drainage tile placed. Recently the grader was run over the road for a second time, to keep it in condition until the oil coating was given by the county.

On the west side approaching road the city graded and worked down the road with the understanding that the county would follow soon. September 11 was the date given operators at the field as the time the county would complete its share of the work.

The county when contacted by operators about the oiling project said the city had not satisfactorily completed its share of the work. Operators state that the county waited so long after the grading job was completed that the road is beginning to have bad spots again, and agree that it will probably have to be regraded. The operators say that the county's excuse for not doing the oiling job now is that the equipment is in the southern part of the county.
