Chinese Troops Revolt to Reds

Canton, Sept. 21 (AP)—Trustworthy Chinese reports today said 20,000 Moslem troops revolted against the nationalists in Arid, northwestern Ningxia province and gone over to the Reds.

The Moslems belonged to the command of Gen. Ma Hung-Kwei, who is estimated to have 80,000 men under his command in Ningxia. Ma has been in Chungking trying to get Chiang Kai-Shek to allot much needed arms to his troops.

The Ningxia revolt report followed word both in nationalist China and communist Shanghai, that 100,000 nationalist troops in Suiyuan province, also in the northwest had gone over to the Reds with their arms.

Private reports here today said a strong communist force was striking westward toward Ningxia from adjoining Inner Mongolia.

Impossible to Pave Elma Avenue

County Commissioner Roy Rice announced Wednesday that it will be impossible for the county to pave Elma avenue into the new city school in Childs addition this summer because of the lack of necessary base to handle the big buses and other traffic which will go over the road.

He said that, however, the county will have the road graded during the winter with a sufficient base so that it may be paved next summer.

Rice also said that the county paving crew Tuesday completed work of paving at the airport, not only on the 25th street extension on the west side but also rejuvenated the pavement from the main airport road into the United Air Line offices.

Dog Killing Brings Protest

H. C. Babcock, Turner, has directed a letter to the Marion county court demanding discharge of Ervin Ward as dog license enforcement officer. The court has passed the letter on to the county dog control board which hires the enforcement officer.

Babcock says that on September 2 the enforcement officer appeared at his place and told him his dog had been killing sheep and would have to be killed itself and if Babcock didn't kill it the enforcement officer would.

Babcock said he had no knowledge of his dog having killed sheep, but consented to its being killed. He says the enforcement officer took the dog about 50 feet to the back end of his lot and shot it three times and would have shot again if he hadn't stopped him.

The dog, said Babcock, was a pet of his two little girls who were crying and asked not to shoot their dog. He also said that his wife was seriously ill in the house and the incident required attendance of her physician.

Dog Control Officer Ward, when asked of the incident, said he did kill the dog, that it had been killing sheep, and that its owner was harboring an unlicensed dog.

He said that Babcock himself was asked as to where he wanted the dog taken to be killed and that he led Ward along with the dog to the spot where the killing was done and that it was a long distance back away from the house.

Petition County for Better Fair Exhibit

Zero Polaire and 10 others file a petition with the county court Wednesday asking that Marion county in 1950 "have a better exhibit at the state fair than has ever been exhibited."

County Judge Murphy called attention to the fact on the reading of the petition that it made nothing but a negative showing and offered no suggestion as to the nature of the improvement asked. The matter has been referred to the county fair board which has charge of financing and furnishing the exhibit.

Polaire said he could have secured 1000 signatures if the county wanted them. Besides him signing the petition are George Gutekunst, J. R. Carruthers, Roy V. Ohmart, C. F. Wilson, Dr. B. Blatchford, John Robins, Irving L. Bunce, H. E. Clark and O. H. Yetter.

Escapee Jones Gets 15 Months More

Donald O. Jones, who as a trusty at the state penitentiary escaped October 12, 1947, by walking away from the prison annex farm, had an extension of 15 months added to his original sentence Wednesday when Judge Rex Kimmell imposed the additional time after Jones had pleaded guilty.

Jones was sent up from Benton county for forgery for two years and had done eight months and six days of it when he decided he wanted to "go over the hill." He was gone for 15 months, being finally apprehended in Mississippi. Lawrence Osterman, appearing for Jones, urged leniency on the court.

When Jones gets through with his original sentence and the extra 15 months attached to it he still is facing a check charge in Utah for which detainer has been placed with prison authorities here.

Changes in Spud Marketing Order

Washington, Sept. 21 (AP)—The agriculture department recommended today some changes in a federal marketing order regulating handling of Irish potatoes grown in Oregon and California.

Adoption of the amendments is subject to approval of the growers. They would permit a committee of growers and handlers to recommend regulation of shipments by grade, size, quality and maturity of varieties.

The committee also could recommend that special consideration be given to shipments for purposes such as export or manufacturing outlets, livestock feed or relief distribution.

The amendments also call for addition of Jefferson and Lake counties, Oregon, and Modoc and Siskiyou counties, California, to the area covered.

Studies show that migratory birds confine themselves to certain geographical regions, known as "flyways."

Transient Held On Check Charge

A tip on a bogus check artist given to police headquarters Wednesday morning led to the arrest of a transient who told detectives a story which will take several days to fathom.

The traveler identified himself as Roy Clifford Bruuas, but he carried no identification. After the tip, a detective trailed his suspect to two separate stores when he endeavored to cash a check.

When the officer took him into custody, he found the check tucked in the bib pocket of Bruuas' overalls. The check used local names which Bruuas claimed he selected from a telephone directory.

The tale the transient told detectives began in August in Sioux Falls, S.D., where he claimed it was released while serving time on a bad check charge. Bruuas said he discovered that prison authorities there had released him instead of another prisoner who was rightfully slated for freedom.

Knowing that, he headed west. In Montana, where he was unable to find work, Bruuas told officers he purchased a quart of wine to fortify his nerves. Then, he said he sharpened his razor and cut his wrists.

His bandaged arms were proof of that part of his story, but the pudgy little man declined to comment on how he had survived the cutting. He merely said he had bandaged the slashes himself.

After that episode, he headed for Portland, but left there Tuesday.

Bruuas was held for court action on a charge of attempting to obtain money under false pretenses with bail set at $1,000.

County Rebukes Zoning Board

The county court by unanimous vote Wednesday passed back to the Salem city zoning and planning commission a proposed plat for Forkner's acres, north of the city with the comment that the zoning commission was asking the court to violate the zoning commission's own order to the court and as County Judge Murphy said "a positive reversal of the standard heretofore set up by the zoning commission."

The question came up when the plat submitted showed that Park Lane is laid out as only a 30-foot street, the subdivision being situated at Park Lane and the Pacific highway. The zoning commission heretofore has established a standard of approving only 60-foot streets within a six-mile radius of the city.

Hedda Swart, county surveyor and chairman of the zoning commission, in submitting the plat to the court, said the commission at a meeting Tuesday night had allowed the plat and directed it to go through with the restriction that houses be set back so that at any time necessary a 60-foot road could be installed. Swart said he was opposed to the plat personally but as chairman of the commission could not vote. He said that Forkner, who also is a member of the zoning commission, did not vote on the question himself and left it up to the rest of the commission.

County Commissioner Rice in moving that the plat be sent back to the zoning commission said that the restrictions put on the width of the road by that commission were ineffective unless successive land owners included them in the deeds they drew up. He said he had been advised that such a restriction
