Polio Victim Reaches N.Y. After Long Wheelchair Trip

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—A half-paralyzed New Mexico polio victim, his powerful shoulders swinging rhythmically, rolled into New York Tuesday in the wheelchair in which he had pushed himself 2450 miles in 201 days.

William C. Lebow, 43, a Clowis, N. M., hotel clerk, said he "just took off down the highway" from his home March 4 and pushed himself to New York entirely with arm power to prove to other polio victims that "you, too, can get around in a wheelchair."

Lebow, stricken with polio at the age of 8 and confined to a wheelchair since, hopes his trip will boost funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis' emergency drive for $14½ million to combat this year's record polio epidemic.

"I had a wonderful time," Lebow said. "I averaged better than 20 miles a day, going about 3¼ miles an hour. One day I made a little more than 31 miles."

Lebow admitted that twice when driving rainstorms caught him in the middle of the highway in his unprotected wheelchair he accepted rides from passing motorists.

"But I went back both times and made up the distance—once it was better than four miles and once 18 blocks. Most of the time when it rained, I just put on my slicker and kept on rolling."

Lebow said the hills gave him a lot of trouble.

"On the way up I just pulled my hat down further and threw my back into it. On the way down, though, that little buggy really began to roll. I had to hang onto the wheels to slow her down."

Lebow's face lighted up when he spoke of the people he'd met across the country.

"Man, that sure is the way to get acquainted with people," he said. "Some motorists used to stop on the road and ask me who I was and when I told 'em they'd give me their telephone number and tell me to be sure and call 'em when I went through their town."

Lebow said his 17-year-old daughter Lucille, didn't want
