

Vishinski Calls Big 5 To Conclude Peace Pact

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinskiy called on the big five power today to conclude a peace pact among themselves. He made no mention of an atomic explosion in the Soviet Union in his general policy address to the United Nations assembly. Vishinskiy prefaced his peace proposal with his usual slashing attack on the western powers. He charged the United States and Britain are leading plans for an aggressive war. Then he introduced a formal resolution by which the assembly would express the desire for Russia, the United States, Britain, China and France to conclude a peace pact among themselves. Vishinskiy said not a word

Johnson Seeks Dismissal

A single word threatened Friday to bring an end to a trial of Fred (Umatilla) Johnson who was brought into district court on a charge of running a poker game. The defense attorney, Brazier Small, waited until District Attorney E. O. Stadter had completed his case against Johnson, then he moved for a directed verdict to free his client. In the judge's office, Small argued that the complaint had also charged Johnson with being a "proprietor" in addition to running a card game at Bert's pool room in Detroit. Small contended that no evidence of ownership or proprietorship had been brought out in court. The case against Johnson had been prepared by a $100-a-week special investigator for the sheriff's office, B. Pate. Pate told of spending two weeks in the dam area ferreting out evidence of gambling. It was his information which led to a series of July raids there. His testimony in the case against Johnson was to the effect that the accused man had run a "dealer's choice" poker game. He claimed Johnson collected a fee for the privilege of letting each player into the game and that he handled a cash box and chips for "the house."

Threat to Peace Becomes Real

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—There was one point of fairly general agreement today in early congressional reaction to news that Russia apparently has the atom bomb—the threat to peace is real. On what to do about it there were about as many opinions as there are shades of thinking at the capitol on world affairs. Sample comment: Senator Wherry (R-Neb): "If the president knew yesterday that Russia had the atomic bomb, why has the emphasis been placed on the ground war strategy of the military assistance bill passed by the senate last night?" He said this country should direct its defense efforts to developing air bases in the United States, North Africa and the Pacific, and concluded a statement: "A fortnight, honorable foreign policy, with fairness to Russia and all other countries, is the best guarantee for keeping the peace."

Refutes Myths About Indians

Indians do not pray for rain; they merely express gratitude for the moisture they are sure will fall. This was one of the numerous assertions refuting popular conceptions of redskin customs made by Charles Eagle Plume before a capacity audience of Salem Knife and Fork club members Thursday night. Eagle Plume, a member of the Blackfoot tribe, attired in tribal costume, presented a program of dances while giving a lecture concerning the original Americans. He closed by urging members of his audience to demand from congress better educational facilities for the Indians. He asserted but 25 per cent of them are given an opportunity to better their lot through education. Many, he said, live under deplorable conditions, suffer from under-nourishment and are not prepared to combat disease.

Although admitting that the squaws perform a majority of the necessary chores on the reservation, Eagle Plume said that was not always true. The very nature of the Indians' struggle for existence through the years meant that all members of the family had to work. The men provided the meat—with primitive tools and on foot in the early days. Ability to secure horses and more powerful weapons lightened their loads, although the squaws' tasks remained the same. Property rights are held almost exclusively on the maternal side of the family, Eagle Plume stated. He spoke of the influence the American Indian had on the economy of the world since they had contributed 25 of the some 32 of the world's chief articles of food.

The next meeting of the club will be held Oct. 13 when Prince Otto of Austria will be the lecturer.

Elfstrom on Parking Issue

Mayor Robert L. Elfstrom believes the possibility of providing parking space for automobiles beneath the courthouse should be explored further. He said as much during a discussion of traffic conditions during Friday's luncheon of the Salem Board of Realtors.

Devaluation Hits Pulp Mills

Seattle, Sept. 23 (AP)—The trade magazine Pulp & Paper expressed the opinion today that Washington's pulp industry faces a threat of ruinous foreign competition because of currency devaluations. The editorial in the Miller Freeman Publications, Inc., magazine said the Scandinavian countries will be able to dump products at 40 per cent less than the prevailing American price. They provide the principal competition for the pulp industries of Washington and British Columbia.

It said it remained to be seen whether the Scandinavian countries would take advantage of the opportunity. It added, however, that during a similar situation in the 1930's, Scandinavia dumped 1,250,000 tons of pulp on the U.S. market, resulting in the closure of two Washington mills and 50 per cent reduction in others. The magazine estimated the industry's Washington payroll at $38,000,000. It said the average wage in the state's pulp industry is $1.76 per hour, 35 cents higher than anywhere else in the world.

Planes Arrive—Climbing from one of the four SNJs that members of the Corvallis Naval Air unit flew to the Salem Naval Air Facility late Thursday for use here is Ens. W. F. Greer of the Corvallis unit. On the ground greeting the ensign, who was one of the pilots, is ADCA Edward B. Fisher of the Salem naval air facility, chief who will be in charge of the maintenance of the planes.

Planes Arrive For Navy Facility

Salem's Naval Air Facility late Thursday got the first of the navy's planes to be used here for training by naval air reservists. The planes, four SNJs, were flown into Salem from the Naval Air Reserve unit at the U.S. Naval Air station at Seattle by members of the Corvallis Naval Air Reserve unit, which is in Seattle on two weeks of active duty.

Pilots of the planes first took the planes to Corvallis, where a number of them registered for the fall term at Oregon State college and then flew them back to the Salem Naval Air facility. All but four of the men returned to Seattle Thursday night in two SJs that also came in from Seattle.

Men at the Naval Air facility were already busy checking over the planes Friday morning preparing them for use by the reserve fliers. First to check out on the planes will be a reservist from Portland, Lt. Comdr. William N. Forbis, who has informed Lt. Comdr. Wallace Hug, officer in charge, that he will be in for flight training this weekend.

Pilots bringing the planes into Salem Thursday evening were all officers but one. This was ADE 1 P. H. Hosmer. Officers who were pilots were Ens. R. L. Cuniff, Lt. (j.g.) L. R. Jepsen, Lt. (j.g.) Oas, First Lt. K. D. Kerr, Lt. (j.g.) H. E. King, Ens. D. P. Norris, Lt. (j.g.) L. L. Lasswell, Lt. Comdr. H. B. Buba, Lt. (j.g.) C. M. Stevens, Ens. R. W. Hill and Ens. W. F. Greer.

Delinquents To Tour Prison

Three alleged juvenile delinquents due to appear in circuit court Friday afternoon before Judge Rex Kimmell will be taken on a personally conducted tour through the Oregon state penitentiary tomorrow on order of the circuit judge. The judge wants them to see what a career of crime leads to and perhaps have a chance to talk to some of the old lifers and find out just what they think of the criminal careers they've indulged in and what reward it has paid them.

The three youths in question are 18 and 17 years of age. One is charged with burglary, another with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and the third with tampering with a car in a parking lot, evidently with no innocent intent at 4 o'clock in the morning.

After the boys have had a chance to see and hear they will be returned to juvenile court where the judge will get their reactions before making his decision in the respective cases.

As far as known this is an innovation in the matter of criminal juvenile jurisprudence in this state, at least. "Perhaps if it is forcibly and visually brought home to these lads to just what end criminal tendencies can lead it may mean a turning point in their lives," said the Marion county jurist.

Judge Kimmell has made arrangements with Warden George Alexander of the prison to have the boys placed in charge of an

Fairview Escapee Picked-up in Car

Donald Bullington, who escaped from the Fairview home Thursday afternoon, was back in custody today, amazed at the efficiency of the state police in recovering stolen cars.

Bullington fled from the home for the mentally deficient and evidently walked to Turner, a few miles distant, where he stole a car belonging to Bob Ball. State police linked the auto theft with the escape of two convicts from the state prison a couple of hours earlier, so broadcast an alarm for every officer to maintain a sharp lookout for the car.

While driving on highway 99-E toward Eugene, a state policeman spotted the vehicle and apprehended Bullington.

The Fairview home escapee still wonders how they worked so fast.
