Atom Explosion

no single nation could in fact have a monopoly of atomic weapons. "This recent development emphasizes once again, if indeed such emphasis were needed, the necessity for that truly effective enforceable international control of atomic energy which this government and the large majority of the members of the United Nations support."

The cabinet meeting lasted more than an hour. Reporters crowded about Secretary of Defense Johnson as he left. "Have we made any force in the disposition of our charges since this happened?" a reporter asked.

"No," Johnson replied. "Does the cabinet know any more about this than is contained in the president's statement?" "The cabinet knows all about it," Johnson said. "It was fully informed."

The president's disclosure came at a time that Britain, Canadian and American experts are discussing problems of the interchange of atomic information and the supply of uranium available to them.

Uranium is the key element in making atomic bombs. The most recent official estimate of when Russia might be able to produce atomic weapons came from President Truman's air policy commission.

That group, headed by Thomas K. Finletter, reported on Dec. 30, 1947, "it would be safe to assume . . . that possibly hostile powers will not be producing atomic weapons in substantial quantities before the end of 1952."

The commission added: "We point out that this does not assume that such powers may not have a few atomic weapons prior to that date."

Health Unit Site

Other developments on D street are some additional doctors' clinics in the offing on properties they now own. This whole development will be dependent first on the state agreeing to turn over the land for the county health unit purposes. The second contingency will be the people of the county voting sufficient funds, probably around $50,000 to finance the establishment of the new unit. This will probably come up at an election in May if sufficient time is left to complete the negotiations and plans under way.

Those interested in establishing the health unit in proximity to the hospital say that it offers numerous advantages aside from the mere fact of its having its own individual location. The plans as now outlined also solve the parking problem which is one of the main objections to the present downtown location of hospital facilities with laboratory and other equipment available is cited as another advantage, along with a number of other reasons given.

Benson holds sandals improvised of tin and discovered by Herder where the escaping pair bedded down.

2 of 3 Escapees

The first tip of a possible escape was flashed to city and state police at 6:16 p. m., after an inmate inside the prison wall notified a guard that he had seen three men running away from the institution.

Another report followed moments later, when a citizen living near Four Corners telephoned police that three men were walking east on a railroad track, and were near Lancaster drive.

City Police Assist
Since state police and sheriff's deputies cars could not be summoned to the spot immediately, Salem city police sped to the spot. They were joined a few minutes later by state police vehicles.

State police who were off duty or on vacation were called at home and ordered to join in the manhunt. Soon dozens of armed men were patrolling the area where the men were reported sighted.

A false report that two of the men were cornered near Lancaster Drive and East State street brought the Salem First Aid car to the scene, in anticipation of a possible gunfight and subsequent injuries.

All three escapees were seen on Terrell Atwood's farm on East State street, three-fourths of a mile east of Four Corners, soon afterward.

Ran Through Bean Field
A neighbor phoned Mrs. Atwood that "some men are running through your bean field." Neither the neighbor nor Mrs. Atwood had yet heard of the prison break.

The three men ran into Atwood's barn, and Atwood and a state policeman followed them into the barn.

Atwood heard scuffling in the barn's hayloft, and had just started to walk off the stairway leading there when he heard the men leap out of a small opening in the side of the barn.

Story of Capture
"They just jumped out," he yelled to the state patrolmen. Atwood ran out a nearby exit, and as he rounded the corner of the barn, he came upon Ralback.

"Hands up," yelled Atwood, who was actually unarmed. Ralback immediately held his bay with a large pole until a state police officer handcuffed the fugitive.

2 of 3 Escapees

Meanwhile, Perkins and Williams ran back through the bean field north of the Atwood residence. Mrs. Atwood pursued one of the men, and was within a few feet of him for about a quarter of a mile.

The Atwood's daughter, 18-year-old Margie, said the other convict ran just a few feet by her.

Atwood later said that all three men were winded and perspiring, apparently as the result of running through fields in their efforts to dodge searchers.

The area was concentrated in that area for the next two hours, but no further sign of the men was seen.

A car reported stolen at Turner about two hours after the escape was recovered great interest until it was uncovered in Eugene later with a Fairview home escapee behind the wheel.

Prison guards joined police in an all-night search for the criminals. Roads and railways within a radius of several miles of Salem were closely checked.

Two strange men were reported seen at Shaw at 1 a. m. Friday. That area was checked closely all night.

Back at the penitentiary, Warden George Alexander questioned Ralback regarding their escape plans. Ralback told the warden that the three planned to go to Groer, head strike to Aumsville, then strike out for Mill City and cross the Cascades.

Perkins' record lists him as 24 years old, light complexion, slender built, brown eyes, brown hair, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 139 pounds, with tattoos on both forearms and two moles on his face.

Williams is listed as 22 years, light complexion, muscular build, blue eyes, dark brown hair, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 150 pounds, and possessing a hare lip.

Travel Men Elect—Manley Robison of the state highway department, was elected a director at the fall meeting of the Pacific Northwest Travel association in Missouri, Mont. Carl Hogg, Salem, was named a director.

Infants Taken Home—Leaving Salem Memorial hospital Thursday were Mrs. Kenneth Hunt and infant son of 545 North 13th street. Mrs. Robert Leffingwell, Route 2, Box 174, took home her infant daughter.

"They Jumped Out Here"—Terrell Atwood of route 6, Salem, is shown here testing the size of an opening on the second floor of his barn. It was through this opening that three Oregon state prison escapees jumped Thursday evening while Atwood and a state policeman were inside the barn looking for them. Atwood captured one of the criminals just as he dropped through this opening, but the other two fled through a nearby bean field.

William John Perkins, left, and Leo Gilbert Williams, right, are sought by police and prison authorities after their escape from the state penitentiary late Thursday afternoon. The two men are still free. Perkins is regarded as a vicious sex criminal.

Senator Morse

"We see that illustrated in a very dramatic way by the administration's proposal to have three men selected by the president take complete administrative control of the Pacific northwest," Morse added.

"I believe we must coordinate agencies, federal and state," he said, "but we must do it without sacrificing local rights and local responsibilities of government."

"Such a program must be carried out by the people themselves in the region and not through a policy of bureaucratic paternalism directed by the executive branch of the government," Morse said.

Morse said the republicans should offer "a constructive program for administering the river development projects of the Pacific northwest which will give the people cheap power, complete flood control, sound soil conservation and reclamation programs and industrial expansion."

As a first step toward Columbia river development, Morse called for approval of the army engineer-reclamation bureau coordinated report.

"Let's get the project built without delay and stop the administration's playing politics with the issue of how they shall be administered once they are built," he said.

"To insist upon any administration straight-jacket, such as the CVA bill, by way of a commitment before the projects are to be completed is not a sound way to handle this program."
