WEAR THEIR HEARTS IN THEIR EYES

Chips, the Mongrel, Proved That Dogs Deserve Medals

By GEORGE TUCKER
New York—There are those who say dogs came to their present position in society through hand-licking and flattery. This is a wicked lie.

The literature of dogs is loaded with actions of courage and loyalty. History proves them closer to man than any other animal. Dogs give him companionship and devotion. They wear their hearts in their eyes. They accept constant neglect without recrimination.

I wish I could explain how dogs got that way. Once I knew a red terrier that followed his master into suicide. He jumped off a building.

There was a setter whose heart broke and he died when the man who owned him never came home from a duck hunt. Ever hear of a cow grieving to death?

Five years ago in Sicily a dog named Chips, a mongrel in the army's K-9 Corps, won a silver Star by capturing an enemy machine gun nest.

He leaped for the gunner's throat. The gunner, suddenly threw down his gun and surrendered. Three others threw up their hands. A general recommended Chips for the Distinguished Service Cross.

After that, the war department said medals couldn't be given dogs. But Chips got his. They riveted it to his collar.

Later, when eight other K-9s were killed in the Southwest Pacific, the army posthumously awarded them certificates "for outstanding performance of duty."

There are dogs like Chips everywhere, and like the red terrier who committed suicide, and the setter who died of a broken heart. Their lives are a running story in the daily newspapers.

Having risen from the status of a beast of the field, without any rights, dogs now legally partake of many of the rights of humans.

They can be brought into some courts and tried as criminals, as in the recent case of a dog named "Scout," who was tried, convicted and executed for biting people.

It was the British who gave first recognition to dogs as personal property.

In a moving commentary, Blackstone, patron saint of law students, found:

"As to those animals which do not serve for food, and which therefore the law holds to have no intrinsic value, as dogs of all sorts, and other creatures kept for whim or pleasure . . . very high pecuniary penalties of a long imprisonment and whipping . . . may be inflicted by two justices of the peace on such a steal, or knowingly harbor a stolen dog, or have in their custody the skin of a dog that has been stolen."

The supreme court of Georgia has noted:

"The dog has figured very extensively in the past and present. In mythology, as Cerberus, he was entrusted with watching the gates of hell, and he seems to have performed his duties so well that there were but few escapes.

"In the history of the past, he was used extensively for hunting purposes as the guardians of persons and property, and as a pet and companion . . . some times he is greatly praised, and at others greatly abused, and few men have deserved, and few men won, higher praise in an epitaph than the following, which was written by Lord Byron in regard to his dead Newfoundland:

"Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without violence, courage without ferocity, and all the virtues of man without his vices. "This praise, which would be unmeaning flattery if inscribed over human ashes, is but a just tribute to the memory of Boat-swain, a dog born at Newfound-land May 3, 1803, and died at Newstead Abbey, November 18, 1808."

Non-Unionists Defy Strikers

Pittsburgh, Sept. 29 (AP)—More non-union diggers went back to the mines in western Pennsylvania today in armed defiance of striking United Mine Workers.

State police said not a single picket-bearing automobile appeared during early morning hours in the vicinity of pits scattered along the hillsides of Clearfield county.

At Bellefonte, Pa., two gunshots were fired yesterday at a convoy of 13 loaded coal trucks which ran a gauntlet of what Sheriff Martin L. Kauffman today called "coal miner pickets."

Kauffman said the tire or one of the trucks was blown out by a bullet. The other bullet missed. Pistols and rifles still were in evidence at numerous diggings. Armed sentries surveyed roads leading to the mines and others rode in the cabs of loaded coal trucks.

An operator spokesman said some 250 more diggers reported to the pits, raising the total of 1350 in about 40 mines.

"More pits are opening all the time," he said.

The tense situation developed as John L. Lewis' 480,000 United Mine Workers started the 10th day of their strike. There's no sign of an early break in the walkout although the miners are scheduled to meet today with southern operators at Bluefield, W. Va.
