Tompkins-Jackson Rites Solemnized in Raymond

Miss Alice Madge Jackson, Salem, daughter of Mrs. Ruth E. Jackson of Raymond, Wash. and Melvin L. Jackson of San Francisco, was married September 24 to Raymond L. Tompkins, son of Mrs. Gale Ellis of Salem. The wedding took place at an evening ceremony at 8 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church in Raymond, the Rev. John G. Williams officiating.

White gladioluses and candlelight decorated the church for the service. Lighting the tapers were Miss Dolores Jackson and Miss Irene Jackson, sisters of the bride, both wearing yellow organdy gowns with matching hats. For the music, Miss Vera Seawalt sang and Mrs. George Askegaard played the organ.

Earl Grant Jackson gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore a white slipper satin gown, designed with nylon yoke and brocaded bodice. The fingertip veil was arranged in coronet style. The bride carried a prayer book belonging to her mother and the one used by a sister, Mrs. J. Russell Andall, at her wedding. Pink rosebuds with streamers were arranged on the book.

Mrs. Robert Forrest Beck, sister of the bride, was honor attendant, wearing a pink dotted Swiss organdy dress made with scalloped neckline and a bustle in the back. With the dress she wore a matching hat and for her flowers carried a colonial bouquet of daisies.

Mrs. Merle D. Hall and Mrs. Conrad R. Habersetter were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Hall in a green dotted Swiss dress with matching hat, Mrs. Habersetter in an orchid one of the same style and with matching hat. Both carried colonial bouquets of daisies.

Marcia Habersetter was the flower girl. She wore a white dotted Swiss frock, similar in style to those of the bride's attendants, and she carried a satin basket of begonias.

Robert Tompkins, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushering were L. Nelson Jackson and Robert Forrest Beck. The reception was held in the church parlors. Mrs. Robert Tompkins cut the bride's cake. Mrs. Lloyd Laudie, Misses Mary Sheffield and Frances Williams poured. Greens and fall flowers decorated the rooms for the reception and the bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and was centered with the four-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Earl G. Jackson took charge of the gifts.

For traveling the bride wore a navy blue suit with fall rose accessories. Following a trip to California the couple will be at home in Salem after October 1.

Campus Clippings OREGON STATE COLLEGE

Familiar sounds of the whistles blowing between classes are one of the certain signs that school is on its way again. Orientation of freshmen and new students filled the program last week with a taste of every type of college life for the beginners. The week was planned to keep everyone from being tired, yet the extent of the tests, picnics, lectures, convos, and dances have taken the glow out of many faces.

Sorority and fraternity members have also been busy with selection of new members. The men finished their rushing this week with the names of several Salem lads now added to the Greek roster. Ray Dvorak is pledging Alpha Tau Omega; George Error, Kappa Sigma; John Day, Kappa Sigma; Dick Tandy and John Fritz, Phi Sigma Kappa; Don Young, Sigma Phi Epsilon. Sorority rushing will end on Friday night with the pledging ceremonies in the various houses.

Registration for the fall term passed the 8400 mark on Monday, faking the expected total of 8700 fall short of the 7059 enrolled last year. Veteran enrollment is down 26 per cent. The 1800 seniors now in school should break all previous graduation records if the entire group should graduate. However, other classes have decreased in size. But the woman shortage is still very evident with the ratio now standing at 3.15 men in attendance for every woman.

Construction is one of the main happenings in Corvallis this season. The new pavilion is nearing completion and plans for the new stadium are coming into reality. Two sororities, which started on the campus during the war, have finally been able to secure the materials to build their houses. Also many of the Corvallis streets running through the campus have been widened. Sophomore Sharon Langdon is back on the campus again after ruling over the three-day football festival at Berkeley last week. Sharon was selected as Oregon State's Miss Football by the team last year and was named Miss Football of 1949 over nine other western university coeds. Students will leave the campus this week-end for Portland where they will see the Oregon State-University of California football game. A huge rally will be held in downtown Portland, Friday night, before the game.
